Antioch juvenile charged in bomb threat

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Community Editor

A desire to have "a three day weekend" prompted the bomb threat called into Antioch Community High School (ACHS) on Oct. 22.

Sgt. Craig Somerville headed the investigation culminating in the arrest and charging of a ACHS juvenile male student on the afternoon of Oct. 25.

"Basically, he (the student) told us he knew he was going to be at the Depke (Juvenile) Center on a hearing for another matter on Monday (Oct. 25), so he made the bomb threat call Friday (Oct. 22) to get out of school and have a three day weekend," Police Chief Charlie Watkins related.

The youth has been charged in a juvenile petition with a Class 4 Felony of knowingly phoning in a false bomb threat report to a school. Police officials declined to give the youth's age or year in school saying only he was a ACHS student and of minor juvenile age which is 16 or under.

"This was one of the finest pieces of police work I've seen in my 23 years," Watkins said in commending Somerville's efforts. "He really had nothing and ended up with a suspect on a case most investigators would have called a dead end."

"We're pleased the police were able to complete the investigation and make an arrest," said Dr. Dennis Hockney, ACHS superintendent. "We'll certainly be supportive as the case moves forward from this point."

Somerville interviewed several people throughout the weekend. Through information obtained from these interviews, Somerville formulated a case with which to bring the suspect in for questioning.

The suspect was brought to the Antioch Police Station the afternoon of Oct. 25. He was subsequently charged on the juvenile petition.

The 16-year-old ACHS student was arraigned Oct. 26 on a disorderly conduct charge for "transmitting a false alarm bomb threat," according to Assistant State's Attorney Mary Yarc, chief of the juvenile division for the Lake County State's Attorney's Office.

Appearing before Judge John G. Radseich, probable cause for the charges was found. The youth was released on home detention pending a status of attorney hearing scheduled for 9 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 3. The family has indicated a desire to obtain their own attorney, according to Yarc.

The youth had been suspended by ACHS officials due to truancy issues. The Oct. 25 hearing at the Robert W. Justice Complex was concerning his truancy case, according to Yarc.

Bomb threat shakes school

A day off from school. Yea!!

Then reality sets in.

For a couple of Antioch Community High School students, a stop at McDonald's across from the school on Oct. 22 at lunch time gave an opportunity to reflect on the morning's activities.

"I went to open the door and a teacher said, 'don't touch it,'" explained 16-year-old sophomore Mike Chu.

Chu and his friend, 15-year-old freshman David Dekind, were among the first 10 to 15 students arriving just before 7 a.m. for a field trip.

Students were instructed to move to the athletic field to the east of the building. Accompanied by teachers and administrators, it was during the walk in the cold autumn air the reality of what was happening set in.

"I thought it was a joke. The whole idea was not very funny. It was really serious. It scared a whole bunch of people"

high school student

"I was kind of surprised," admits Chu. "At first, it was kind of amusing. Once we got to the field, I got worried."

The look of concern on a female teacher's face who kept looking back at the building is what brought Chu to view the seriousness of the situation.

"I thought it was a joke," said Chu.

A lifetime of experiences

Grandparents' school visit brings back memories

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Community Editor

A one-room school house. Walking miles to and from school.

No electricity.

No television. No computers.

No automobiles.

Is this a fantasy land?

No. It is part of the life experiences shared by grandparents with third graders at Antioch Lower Grade School.

Grandparents came in to visit the five third grade classrooms for a 90-minute session on the morning of Oct. 22.

This is part of a unit inspired by the students reading the book "Granddaddy's Place."

"Cool" and "neat" were the words used by 8-year-old Molly Brooke, a third grader in Barbara Teegen's classroom, when her grandparents agreed to come to school.

"I wanted to ask them right away," Brooke said of her reaction when Teegen told students about the program.

Grandma "Mike" Gross, age 72, and her husband, Grandpa Bob Gross, age 75, expressed enjoyment in coming to see the children.

"It really did bring back

"They were very interested in what we had to say. It was a very good feeling for me to come and visit" memories," admits Grandma Mike. "All of the grandparents seemed in agreement on most things we talked about."

Grandma "Mike" Gross

Among the items mentioned by various grandparents were school buildings without electricity, having no school buses, and needing to walk miles to school.

"We used to hunt on the way to school," recalls Grandpa Bob. "We had a gun rack in the school. When we'd get there, we had to put the gun in the rack, and the teacher would lock it up for us."

One of the grandmothers who came from England recalled having to wear uniforms to school. Several who attended Catholic schools recalled the same thing.

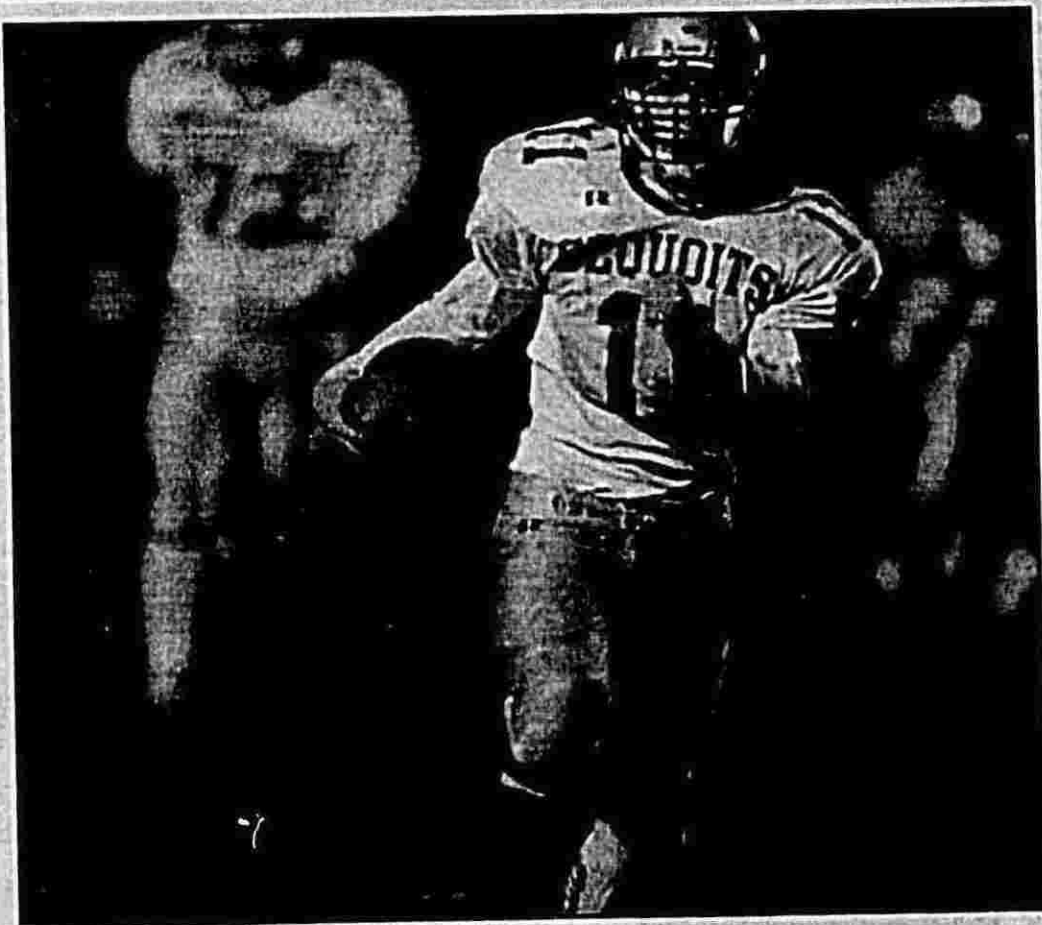

"Teachers seemed stricter," Grandma Mike said. "I decided after coming here schools are a lot nicer and friendlier now."

Parental involvement is much more today, both Grosses agreed. "My parents never came to school. Even when we graduated 8th grade there was just the teacher, the students and the principal."

"Parents weren't invited to school," Grandpa Bob interjected. "We had 24 students in my entire school (Grass Lake School in Antioch). I remember in the 6th grade when I was supposed to go to 7th grade, they decided since I'd be the only one in that class, they put me in 8th grade. Not because I was smart, but I think it was easier on the teacher."

Discipline was handled much differently when the Grosses were in

Students' lives focus of Ms. Illinois reign

21-year-old piano major addresses youth suicide at St. Peter's speech

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Community Editor

"If I save one life, it's all worth it." Jade Smalls, 1999 Miss Illinois, views her role in speaking to young people as one of bringing education and hope.

Youth suicide prevention is the focus of Smalls in her school speaking tour to over 250 locations throughout the state.

Smalls addressed students from St. Peter's Catholic School in Antioch the morning of Oct. 25 to begin the school's Red Ribbon Week activities.

The 21-year-old Northwestern University senior focused on the just say no message to the students ranging in ages from kindergarten through 8th grade. Following a question-answer session, Smalls greeted each student as they left the gymnasium thanking them for coming to see her and visiting with her.

At each of her speaking stops, Smalls appeals to school administration for the opportunity to address parent-teacher or community organizations about the youth suicide problem in this country.

The focus of Smalls on youth suicide comes from her high school days in Charleston, S.C. A classmate and her boyfriend went on a cross-country crime spree eventually ending in a double-suicide.

"That was four years ago and what many would consider a isolated incident," Smalls said. "That happening now, with things like Columbine and Atlanta, it would probably not draw much interest."

Three follow-up suicides during the year after the incident at Smalls high school says sparked her growing concern for education of people on the potential problem.

"It'll be a lot worse if we don't tackle the issue," Smalls said. "Kids are on edge. I hope to be able to relate to those contemplating using suicide as a solution."

"The power of the tongue" was the main topic focus for Smalls at St. Peter's.

"I spoke about how words can effect people forever," Smalls said. "Peer pressure and bullying can have a lasting effect."

"I talk about the use of the power of the tongue for either a negative or positive situation," Smalls explained. "It has a big effect on how kids relate. They never think of their tongue as a tool of communication or power."

In addition to speaking to over 250 schools during her reign, Smalls spoke before a U.S. Congressional hearing Oct. 27 regarding gun control, mental health insurance and suicide prevention. That marked her third appearance before Congress since taking her crown in June.

Speaking before Congress addressing government issues is viewed as important for Smalls in the efforts to reduce youth suicides, but is not the highlight of her reign.

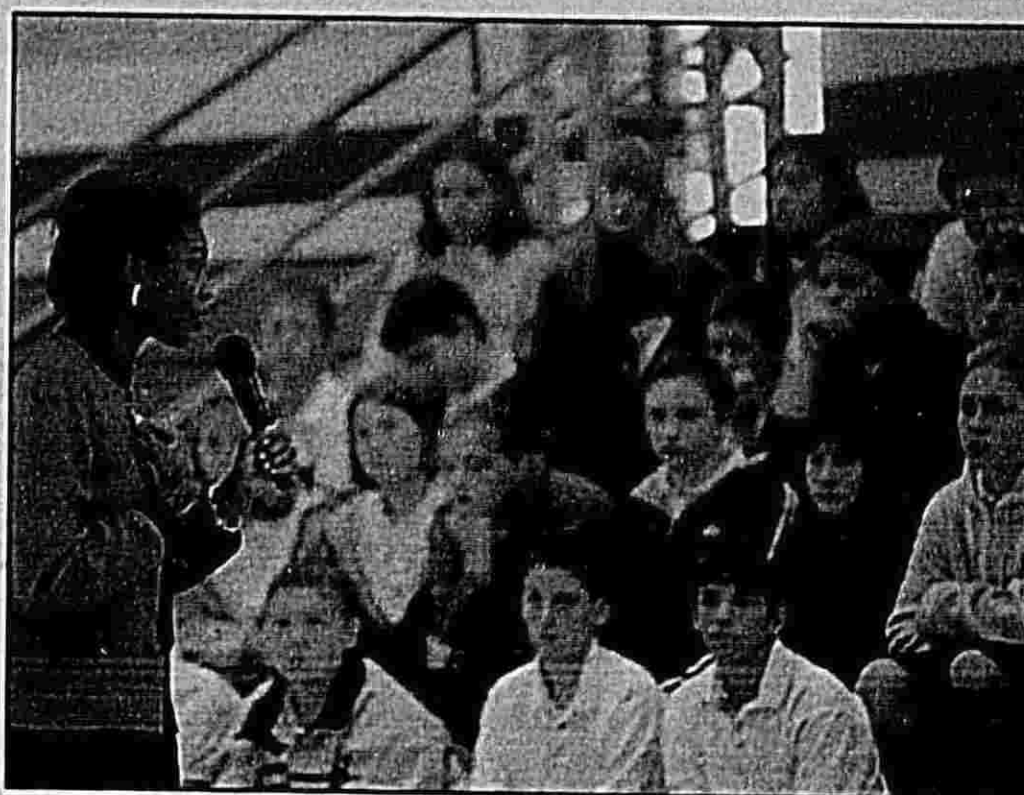

"It's such a great opportunity because not many 21-year-olds can say they've spoken before Congress," Smalls admits.

Addressing school age children is something Smalls enjoys having the opportunity. "One in four high school students has contemplated suicide over the past six months," Smalls said, citing research. "Not one school I've spoken at when I ask the question have you ever been effected by suicide, have I seen no hands go up."

Attending a international conference on suicide prevention in Athens, Greece in November is something Smalls is looking forward to participating in. Many of the world's leading suicideologists will be in attendance. Smalls points out it must be of growing concern when a special science is developed for the study of suicide.

"I'm going to add the down to earth message and show what young people can do with their positive side," Smalls points out.

What Smalls could normally be doing her senior year at the Evanston campus is on hold. The piano performance major will put off graduation until spring of 2001 to fulfill her obligations and obsession with spreading the word about youth suicide concerns.

"I like where I'm at," Smalls said of her decision to stay with her music major. "I love music, but have a real passion for life."

"It's devastating to see someone make the choice of death over life," Smalls adds.

"It's most rewarding to go to a school and after I speak, see them take the discussion back into the classroom and continue it," Smalls said. "It's real."

"Realizing in order to be an effective Ms. Illinois, it's not the number of times I address congress," Smalls explained what she views as a successful reign. "It may be hard to measure or know, but seeing one child who hears my message chose life over death makes it successful."

Antioch Rotary gets inside look at children's home

By JULIANA WALSWORTH
Staff Reporter

The Antioch Rotary was invited to hold their weekly Thursday luncheon at the Central Baptist Children's Home (CBCH) in Lake Villa.

The Antioch Rotary has very generously supported CBCH through the years.

Joyce Heneberry, marketing and volunteer coordinator of CBCH said that she wanted to not only thank the club for the money donated but to inform the Rotary in detail as to what their funds are going towards.

Amy Younts, a CBCH public relations representative, described the Wings Program.

Wings was created to support young parents and help them prepare for the birth and parenting of their child. Wings is a preventative service to avoid child abuse and neglect.

Wings intervenes with parents from the prenatal stage of a child until the child begins school.

Preventative services, such as Wings, teach young parents how to care for a child, how to plan a schedule, how to strengthen families and resources, and provide day care for women in high school or in some cases junior high.

According to Younts, the CBCH has helped an 11-year-old girl with twins.

Other services offered are parent group counseling, child development services, homemaker services which teach parenting skills in areas of household management and child care. Family aid specialists concentrate on discipline, supervision, and health.

CBCH also has comprehensive community based youth services for youth ages 12 to 18 who have run away from or have been rejected from their homes or have been repeatedly apprehended by law enforcement.

CBCH helps to reunite the family and if that is not possible the child is placed in temporary foster care.

CBCH's top priority is to keep families together or have the families get back together at a time appropriate for the family and child. Sometimes neither is possible.

CBCH places children in foster families or permanent adopted families. CBCH also has children living at the home in Lake Villa.

LIFETIME: Seniors share life experiences school during the 1930s. "When we were bad, the teacher would give us a switch blade knife. We'd go out back of school and cut a stick off a willow tree. We'd bring it in and they'd smack us with the twitch," Grandpa Bob said.

Grandma Mike went to Chicago schools, attending three different ones in grade school including Dewey at 55th and Union for third grade around 1936. "There were 48 desks and they were anchored to the floor," Grandma Mike recalled. "They had ink wells in the desks. Ink wells for the braids of the girls in front of you many times."

"I got sent outside more than once for putting girl's hair in the ink," Grandpa Bob interjected. "Many times I got a switch for that."

"I think they definitely learn more today," Grandpa Bob said. "Schools are more diversified. Mostly it was reading, writing and arithmetic when we were in school."

"Now they're doing stuff in third grade I didn't do until I was in high school," Grandpa Bob added, noting he was in third grade in 1933.

"Teachers are better today because they're more educated," Grandpa Bob explained. "If you were a high school graduate, you could be a teacher. The children's education is so much more well rounded today with music and other things."

Grandma Mike noticed a science project Molly was doing which was more like what they would do in high school.

The reaction from the students was great, agreed upon by both Grosses. The students were very attentive, well prepared in what type of questions to ask and were well behaved.

"They were very interested in what we had to say," said Grandma Mike. "It was a very good feeling for me to come and visit."

Colleen McConahay, a 1st grade teacher at Antioch Lower Grade School, is the daughter of the Grosses who has gone into education.

"We're very fortunate to be so close," Grandpa Bob said of his children and grandchildren.

Molly agreed, saying she enjoys seeing them often.

"They really are energetic," said Connie Downard of the grandparents. "It's nice for the kids to see that just because you're past a certain age it doesn't mean you have to slow down."

Downard is one of the third grade teachers who helped set up the program. It began last school year when a reading unit talked about things grandparents may have experienced.

"Grandparents generally don't get invited into schools much," admits Downard. "It's kind of eye opening for them, too."

"One of the ladies remarked as she was leaving she might think differently about voting for a tax increase for the schools the next time one comes up after seeing what they do," Downard added.

For a little while on this cool autumn day in October, these two grandparents were among about 60, including one great-grandmother, who brought light and wisdom to students of Antioch Lower Grade School.

What a priceless educational experience for the students...and the grandparents.

Safety main concern in canceling school

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Community Editor

It began as a normal school day. Then a call left on the Antioch Community High School (ACHS) attendance office answering machine forced school officials to call off classes.

The call came in from a male voice at 6:30 a.m. on the machine. An office staff person discovered the message and alerted school administrators and the police and fire authorities.

Police Chief

Charlie Watkins stated the caller said on the voice mail "a bomb would go off in the school" sometime during the day on Oct. 22. The date coincided with the final day of the school's grading quarter. That fact along with others was continuing to be investigated by police authorities in cooperation with school officials throughout the weekend.

A preliminary search was completed by officials from Antioch Fire and Police Departments taking approximately one hour, according to Watkins.

School administrative personnel, numbering 12, along with two volunteer teachers, went through over 4,000 school and physical education lockers looking for possible suspicious items.

None were found following the painstaking over four hour search completed around noon.

Dr. Dennis Hockney, ACHS superintendent, made the decision shortly after being notified of the threat the school building could not be adequately searched and considered safe in time to accept students. Some students had arrived early for a field trip and other planned pre-school activities.

"Our first concern is about the safety of everyone who comes into the building, students, faculty and staff," Hockney said. "I knew we couldn't secure the building before the students arrived. That's why I made the decision to call off school."

Those students who were already at the building were orderly moved out into the athletic field east of the school building.

Teachers and administrators accompanied the students, numbering an estimated 100-150. As buses arrived, students remained on board and were ultimately instructed to return to their homes. The students were instructed to return home following the decision to cancel classes.

After school activities such as athletic contests, both of which were scheduled away for Antioch on Oct. 22, went on as planned.

A preset plan for such an event was followed by ACHS personnel. This includes the search of the building in an orchestrated deliberate series of sections.

The addition of contractors on the site doing remodeling and addition work on the building created another set of circumstances to address. A search was made of the workers' tool boxes, etc. The workers were pulled off the job until school officials were satisfied the building was secure. They were back at work by noon.

"This is serious stuff," Watkins emphasized. "There is a specific state statute dealing with someone calling in a false bomb threat. It is a Class 4 felony."

"We've agreed this should be a very aggressive investigation," Hockney emphasized. "It disrupted the lives of 2,100 people, many of whom wanted to be in school. We want the individual(s) prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law."

"We had to act a lot faster," Hockney said of the search of the building, etc. "Everybody did the right thing. The administrators knew what to do and did it. The police department knew its part and did it. So did the fire department."

"I couldn't put over 2,100 people in harms way," Hockney concluded. "We missed a day now. We'll make it up in June."

superintendent

BOMB: Scare at high school shocks students

"The whole idea was not very funny. It was really serious. It scared a whole bunch of people."

"At first, I thought it was a joke because we didn't know what was going on," explained Dekind. "When they told us to go home, I knew it was getting more serious."

"If they hadn't sent us home, I don't think I would've felt safe going back in the school," Chu added, to which Dekind agreed.

Questions about what the police, fire department and school officials had done regarding the search showed the concern of these two students was still going on five hours later.

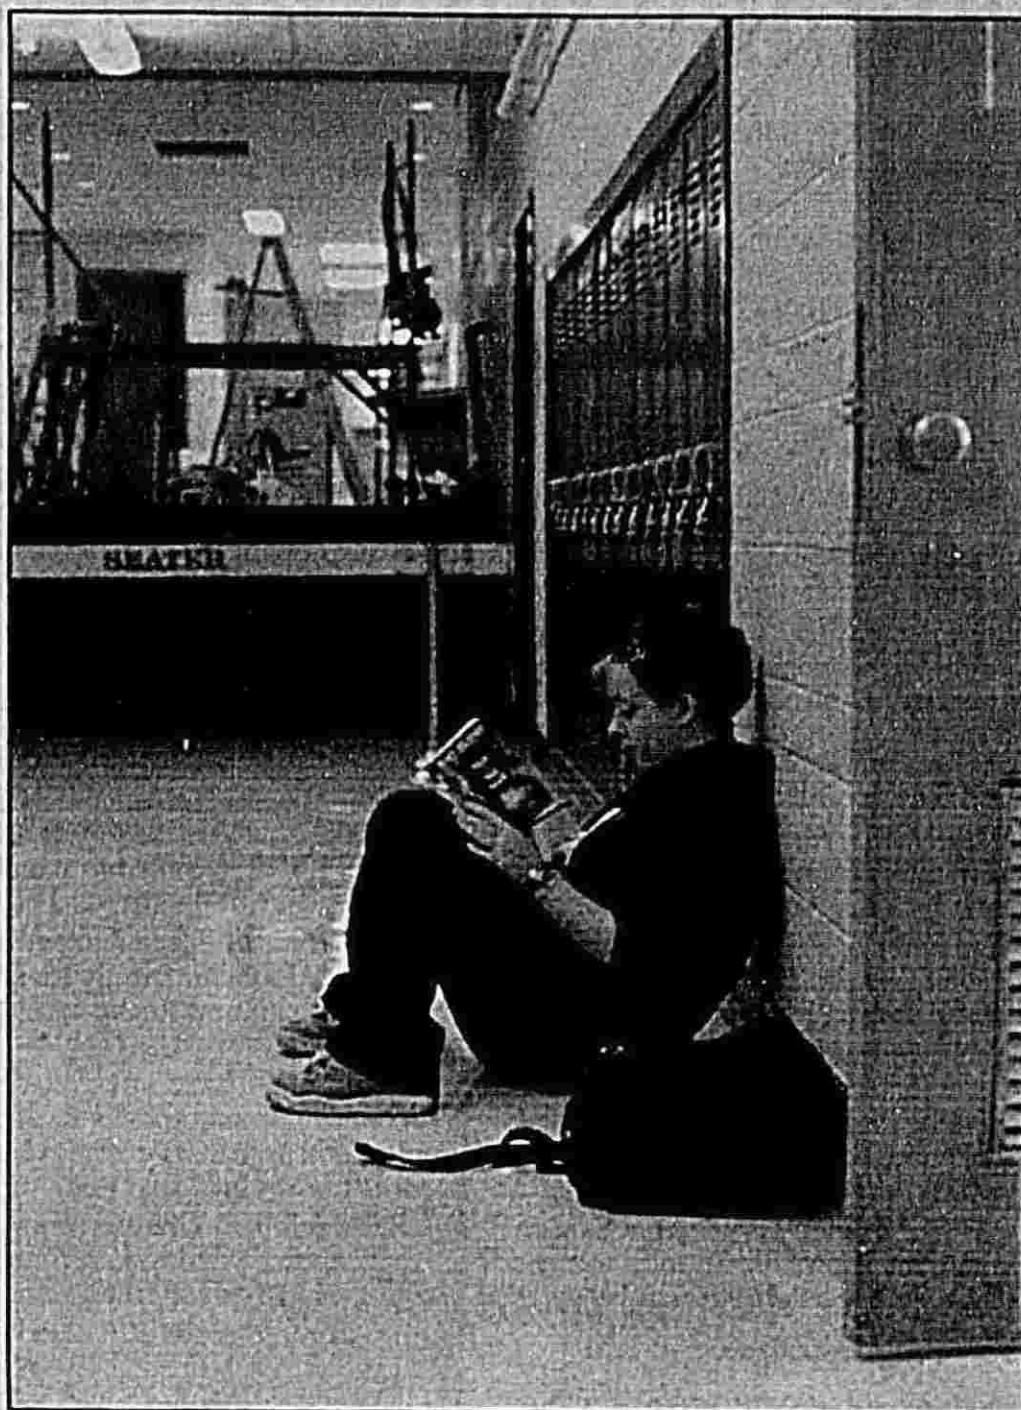

"We're teenagers, so we're going to laugh and think it's funny because we get a day off of school," Chu said with Dekind agreeing again. "I admit I'm probably not going to feel the same when I go back into the school."

The reaction of fellow students in the athletic field was one of anger because they were cold and thinking the whole thing was a joke, according to both students.

Then things got quieter when administrators told them about school being cancelled.

As ACHS Superintendent Dr. Dennis Hockney stated, the incident affected the lives of a minimum of 2,100 students, most of whom would have rather been in school. Such was the case for these two students.

Although Hockney reported according to his observations, school went on "as a normal day" on Oct. 25, one would wonder how many students lives, and people in the community, may never be the same.

Man arrested for solicitation on Internet

By JULIANA WALSWORTH
Staff Reporter

A 32 year-old Grayslake resident, Dale A. Beranek was arrested as a result of continual monitoring of on-line computer activity by the Child Exploitation Unit.

The arrest was made in Waukegan on Oct. 20 at the sight of a prearranged meeting place organized via the internet by Beranek and a Sheriff's Office Detective who represented himself as being age 15.

According to a representative of the Lake County Sheriff's Office, Beranek has been engaged in on-line conversation of a sexual nature with sheriff office detectives since March of 1999.

Beranek finally asked the "youth" to meet with him and engage in sexual acts. When Beranek arrived at the meeting place he had approached an undercover sheriff office deputy.

Members of the Lake County Sheriff's Child Exploitation Unit and an investigator from the Children's Advocacy Center arrested Beranek immediately.

Beranek cooperated with investigators and provided a statement of consent to search his residence. Officials confiscated three computers, hundreds of computer disks, and three fire arms.

The contents of the computers and disks are still being investigated. Images of child pornography have already been retrieved.

After the Lake County States' Attorneys Office reviewed the case, Beranek was charged with three counts of Indecent Solicitation of a child and one count of child pornography. A bond was set at $100,000.

"In a continuing effort to provide a safe environment for the children of Lake County, the Sheriff's Child Exploitation Unit will continue to monitor on-line activity," said Sheriff Gary Del Re.

Del Re suggests that if a parent or any member of the public has questions regarding the safe use of the Internet by children they should call the Child Exploitation Unit of the Sheriff's Office at 360-5850.

Illegal possession of cannabis

On Oct. 22, Barry Lindgren, 24, of Antioch was woken by a Lake Villa Police officer while he was sleeping in his vehicle. Lindgren told the officer that he was sleeping in his vehicle because he had just worked a 14 hour day.

Lindgren was asked to exit his car and take a field sobriety test. He passed all tests.

It then appeared that Lindgren was driving on a suspended license and was also unable to show the officer a valid drivers license.

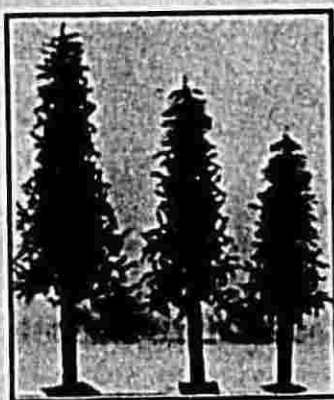

Lindgren was taken into custody and the officer did a post arrest search of Lindgren's vehicle.

A silver marijuana pipe was found in the vehicles ashtray. The pipe was confiscated as contraband.

Lindgren was charged with possession of marijuana, improper parking on a roadway, driving without a license, and no insurance. He was processed and released with a $2000 bond after his vehicle was towed away.

HAUNTED B&Bs

by JIM WARNKEN,
President, North Star Travel, Inc.

A stay at a Bed & Breakfast Inn doesn't always afford a lot of privacy. In fact, there are a few where you may have to share your room with a ghost!

Take the Village Green Inn in Falmouth, Massachusetts. It's said to be haunted by three New England spirits. During a stay at this Cape Cod home you may be visited by the spirit of a young girl dressed in white who died in the home at the age of 13. Or you could meet the ghost of Dr. Trip, a physician who once ran his practice from the home. Then there's a mysterious couple dressed in 1800s clothing who have been seen roaming the halls at night. The Village Green's number is (508) 548-5621.

The Wedgewood Inn of New Hope, Pennsylvania, is located on the site of Revolutionary and French and Indian War Battles. Three spirits from these battles reside in each of the inn's three Victorian houses. You can reach them (The Wedgewood Inn, not the ghosts) at (215) 862-2520.

If you stay at Madrona Manor in Healdsburg, California, you'll find room 101 is already occupied. The spirit of a young girl has taken up residency there. Another ghost named Elsie spends most of her time in the dining room. Madrona Manor's number is at (707) 433-4231.

Country Dreams, a B&B near Springfield, Illinois seems to want to attract ghosts. This inn has named its rooms after the inhabitants of a cemetery that shares its 16-acre site. For reservations (at the Inn, not the cemetery) call (217) 498-9210.

For some "out of this world" (literally) jazz, spend a night at the award-winning Abigail's Elegant Victorian Mansion in Eureka, California. This 1888 National Historic Landmark is home to a spirit who causes a phonograph to play jazz records all by itself. Abigail's phone is (707) 443-3144.

The Teter family has owned Hummingbird Inn in Goshen, Virginia, for over 100 years. The spirit of Pearl Teter, who died at the Inn 33 years ago can't seem to leave the five bedroom inn. Call the Teters at (800) 397-3214.

The wife and two children of the original owner of Myrtle's Plantation in St. Francisville, Louisiana, were murdered there and are said to still roam the grounds. Between 1827 and 1927 there were seven other murders at this antebellum plantation. Call them at (800) 809-0565 if you dare.

If you're looking for a real spooky looking Inn, the Gothic looking Harry Packer Mansion in Jim Thorpe, Pennsylvania, was the model for the Haunted Mansion at Disney World. Phone (717) 325-8566.

Happy Haunting.

Hometown goodies make Halloween a little sweeter

As if you didn't know, or thought you might have missed it, Halloween is this weekend. Although judging by the merchandise donning the shelves at the stores, you probably thought you had slept right through Halloween and Thanksgiving. Whatever happened to waiting until the Friday after Thanksgiving before bringing the fake tree down from the attic?

Now we haven't even heralded our first "Trick or Treat" and Santa is "ho, ho, ho'ing at us in the malls. At this pace, with the lack luster brought on by Thanksgiving, that holiday had better pick up the pace or it won't be long before most generations think the fourth Thursday in November exists only so there can be football games on a weekday afternoon, and husbands can watch those games in peace while wives everywhere head for the mall to start their holiday shopping.

Halloween, on the other hand is picking up the momentum much to the glee of the prosperous dentist looking for a little job security who came up with the whole holiday idea in the first place.

Dr. Dentist, playing cards one night with his brother-in-law, Mr. Candy Manufacturer, probably put their noggins together and came up with this sure fire way to finance their children's college education and put a new Lexus in their driveway every year. Then some shirtail relative, named Hallmark, jumped on the bandwagon and started producing all the appropriate accessories and partyware to go along with the festivities. Nowadays, Halloween holds a lot more punch than years ago. There are no longer costumes that consist of an old sheet thrown over your head with two eye holes and a torn pillowcase slung over your shoulder to hold all your loot. Now we warn our children not to sneak a treat on their pilgrimage through the neighborhood until all their candy has been x-rayed for foreign objects. Houses are now decorated as if it were Christmas, and numerous Halloween parties fill the calendar. But not all is lost of the days gone by.

JINGLE FROM PRINGLE

Sunday, when all the ghost and goblins and Star War characters dump their sugar-filled treasures on the kitchen table to weed out the yucky stuff, fond childhood memories will come flooding back to parents as we pilfer through the discard pile and see all the broken candy corn and those nondescript black and orange wrapped candies that we wouldn't eat as children either. At least now, parents, we can bring them into the office and set them next to the coffee pot on Monday morning. Its almost a guarantee they will be gone by lunch time.

Happy Halloween!
And so goes another jingle from Pringle.

THE CLIPBOARD

Second season has arrived!

The good news is that we have five area football teams partaking in the state football playoffs.

The bad news is that they all have to travel to what seems like kingdom come if they want to play.

Warren made it in at 6-3 after thrashing Lake Forest last weekend. But the Devils have little time to celebrate, as they have a date in Edwardsville this Friday, some 5-plus hours away.

Things aren't any better for the Antioch Sequoits, who travel to Bloomington in central Illinois. Not terrible—it's only 2-and-a-half hours.

Then there's Johnsbury, who makes a return trip to the big dance after finishing the year at 7-2. The Skyhawks have the dubious honor of road-tripping it to Canton, also in the central Illinois vicinity.

Grant, which finished with the area's best record at 8-1, doesn't have to far to go when it travels to LaGrange for a date with Nazareth.

And finally, Libertyville finds itself a little closer to the home-front when it tangles with Fox Valley power Jacobs this Saturday.

Should be interesting with Warren and Antioch seeming to peak at the right time. Remember, it's who's hot going into the playoffs that may have the best chance of advancing.

Libertyville, with that potent ground attack should have a barn-burner with Jacob's, but the Wildcats need to get wideout Jake Voigt into the offense more.

Grant and Aaron Behm could cause some commotion if they stay away from the big plays by the opposition, while Johnsbury is always a threat to contend in the post-season.

No matter how you slice it, we now enter into the time of year in high school football where a lot of teams are just happy to make it in. Then there's the one's who have been there, done that, and are looking to take it to the next level.

It is my estimation that we could have all five of our teams could live to see another game after this weekends play. But you never know and that's what makes this time of the year in high school football that much more exciting.

Antioch: Take that, Stevenson!

Sequoits perform thriller in come from behind overtime football win

By JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

So, the recently-crowned North Suburban champion Stevenson Patriots aren't invincible after all.

Not to be mistaken, the Pats (7-2, 6-1) are still a very good football team.

But last Friday night, it was do-or-die for the Antioch varsity football team, which needed a win to secure an at-large berth in the upcoming high school playoffs.

And the Sequoits answered the call, prevailing 42-35 in overtime. The loss was the only blemish on the Patriot's drive for a perfect conference record.

Heart and soul were the operative words last week for the Sequoits, who were seemingly out of the game, trailing 35-20 after three quarters of play.

"The kids refused to lose," said head coach Del Pechauer. "I've never seen anything like it—they just kept coming back."

One guy who definitely displayed tremendous desire and heart was quarterback Don Lackey, who overcame four interceptions on the evening. Lackey orchestrated the eventual game-tying score, a drive that covered 58 yards in 14 plays.

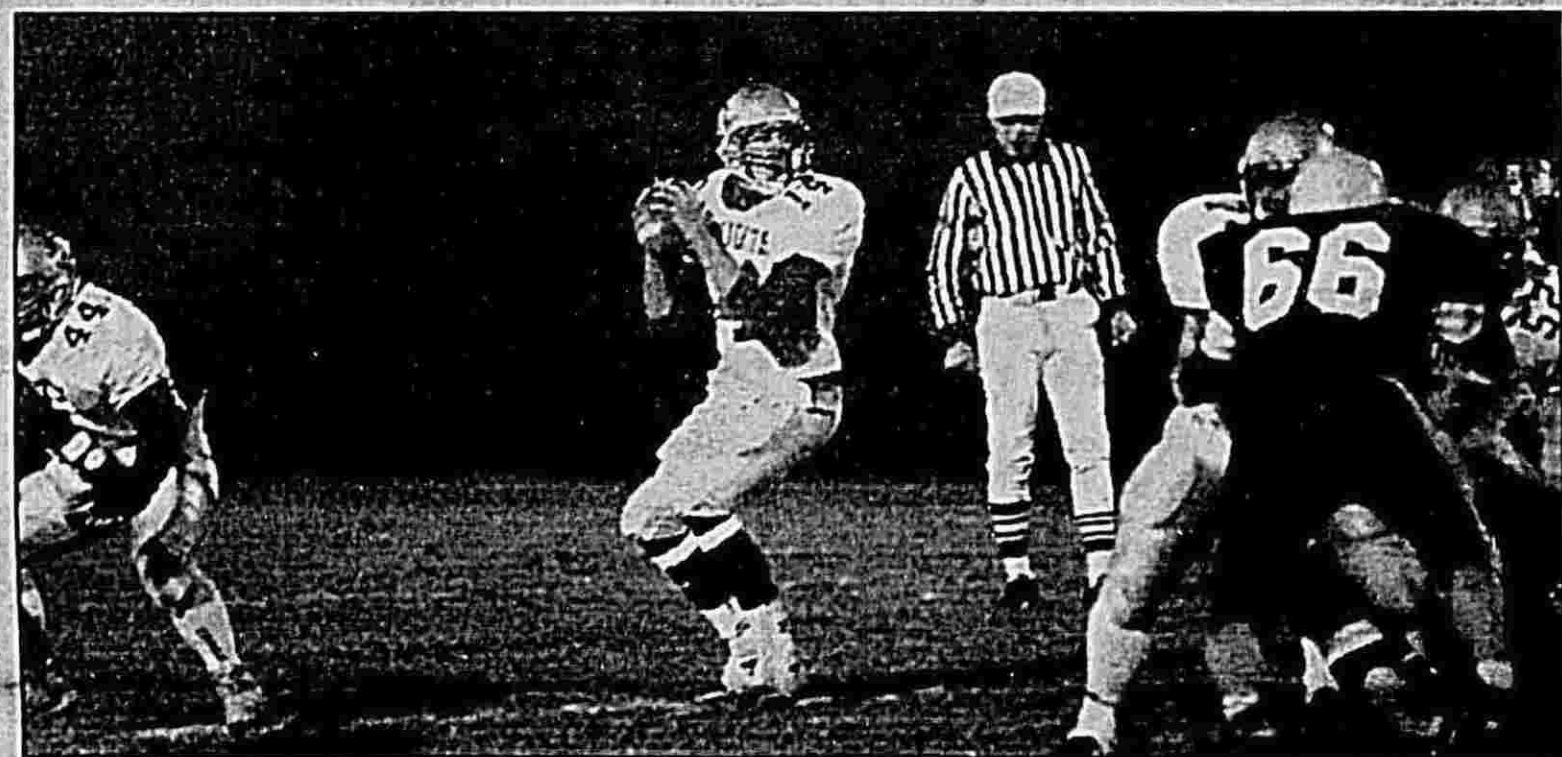

And with 4 seconds remaining in regulation, the senior signal-caller rifled a 4-yard pass to wideout Eric White in the endzone as the Antioch faithful went into a frenzy shortly after.

"Jimmy (Richardson) and I lined up on the right side," said White,

"and the safety went with Jim, leaving me open. Don hit me right between the numbers."

White finished with 71 yards on seven receptions while Richardson wound up with 68 yards on six catches, including a 19-yard pass from Lackey that drew the visitors to within one at 7-6 early in the first quarter.

Lackey wasn't through, though. After scoring 15 unanswered points in the fourth quarter in evening the game at 35-35, Antioch had the first opportunity in the overtime. Lackey, on 4th and 4, raced in for what turned out to be the eventual game-winner.

Sequoits earn tough victory over pesky Warren

By JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

It doesn't matter what seeds they are or what teams are playing. Whenever Warren and Antioch get together, signs of a hot rivalry are almost always evident.

Well, Tuesday afternoon at Polley Field was no different as the two hooked up for a first-round sectional contest.

Fighting gusty winds and chilly temperatures, the second-seeded Sequoits held off the seventh-seeded upstart Blue Devils, 2-1.

Antioch, which improves to 15-3, moves on the face Jacobs today at Grayslake at 6 p.m. in the semifinals of the Grayslake Sectionals.

Antioch jumped to a 1-0 lead Tuesday when go-to guy Matt Miclea fired one past a diving Wes Dohnke with 29:54 left in the first half. The Sequoits scored their second goal about eight minutes into the second half when Adam Schuster scored unassisted.

"We took advantage of the opportunities," said Sequoit head coach Charlie Trout. "We still need to be more solid for a whole game if we want to do anything in the post-season."

Miclea's score was his 32nd of the year.

"I cut with my right foot to one side, turned, and shot it in with my right," he said. "I thought we dominated the midfield, especially in the first half. We had some lapses in the second half but persevered and hung on for the win."

Trout agreed: "They was some real physical play out there today," he said. "They got in our heads for awhile in the second half but we regained focus in holding on."

Warren, which finished 7-14-2, scored its goal when Garrett Slemmons headed a ball in with 7:55 remaining in the game. He was assisted, also via a header, by Matt Deimler.

"It was a do-or-die effort," said Warren coach Bob Tatgenhorst. "We played awfully hard but the first half hurt us. We were a little disoriented and unorganized out there."

Dohnke tallied six saves for Warren while Antioch keeper Nick Placko recorded one.

Antioch outshot the Blue Devils 9-4 for the game.

The Sequoits, who finished 6-3 overall and 5-2 in the conference, travel to Bloomington Saturday for a 1 p.m. first-round Class 5A playoff game.

"They're quarterback is a great athlete and their linemen are big and strong," said Pechauer. "If we can stay away from the turnovers, I think we'll be in decent shape."

Incidentally, Antioch held its awards banquet Monday night. Wide receiver/defensive end Keli Owens, coming back from a torn ACL injury (knee) from a year ago, and Purnell, were named the teams Most Improved Players. The Most Valuable Player Award went to wide receiver Eric White, while the Team Captain was linebacker Conrad Adkins.

Clarke heading to sectionals

Clarke's time of 17:21 over the 2.5-mile course earned her a date in the sectionals this weekend.

Other top finishers for the Sequoits included Amanda Hammond (18:35) in 35th and Emily Bock (18:42) in 39th. Sara Brzezinski (19:06) finished 49th and Laura Hammond (19:07) was right behind in 50th.

As a team, the Lady Sequoits finished eighth with 173 points.

The boys team collected 201 points in finishing ninth out of 12 teams.

Leading the way was Nick Downard (18:19) in 29th, Brad Groth (18:33) 35th, Justin Mehaffey (18:40) in 40th, and Ryan Moxley (18:50) in 44th.

Prairie Ridge won the event with 43 points, while Matt Legel from Crystal Lake Central won individual honors.

YOUTH ROUNDUP

LV PeeWee offense cruises by Warren, 19-0

The Lake Villa Timberwolves PeeWee team raised their record to 7-0 posting a 19-0 shutout victory over Warren White.

The Wolves offense came out strong with running back Nick Waido scoring on their first offensive play with a 51-yard TD run. Sean Hertz' 65-yard kickoff return starting the second half increased the Wolves lead to 12-0.

Other outstanding offense performances were turned in by Mike Soto, Bobby Whitaker, Danny Sheridan, Joe Ramos and Kara Ogryzek as they created holes for the backfield all afternoon.

Not to be outdone, the defense was equally impressive as they held Warren to 1 first down. Nick Waido's interception TD run of 25 yards and Matt Limbert's rumble into the end zone for the extra point completed the scoring for the Wolves.

While the defensive unit has been sparkling, the offensive side of the ball has been equally responsible for the Lake Villa Timberwolves PeeWee football team's 6-0 record this season. Back row (left to right) is Nick Harrington, Danny Sheridan, Billy Battistone, Sean Hertz, Joe Ramos, Brian Schmidt, Matt Limbert, John Murphy, Bobby Whitaker, and Chad Stilke. Antioch lightweights romp

The Antioch lightweight vikings football team cruised 40-6 over Barrington in opening round playoff action last weekend.

Running back Jeff Kibongé (53 yards) scored the Vikings opening touchdown, a 22-yard run in the first quarter, as Antioch was never threatened from then on.

Quarterback T.J. Weyenberg completed 6-of-9 passes for 130 yards, including two touchdown throws to Taylor Pechauer (22 yards) and Jeff Canella (12 yards).

Weyenberg also raced for a score on a 33-yard QB sweep in the third quarter.

Nate Hughes scored the final touchdown, a 42-yard run in the fourth quarter.

Canella finished with 61 yards on 6 carries as the Vikings improved to 8-1 on the season and Taylor Hosick booted five extra points.

Defensively, Barrington was held to just four first downs and 81 total yards of offense.

Antioch will play the Grayslake Colts, a team they defeated 30-14 earlier in the season, this Sunday in Lake Villa at 12:30.

Antioch Varsity Vikings prevail

The Antioch Vikings Varsity football team marched to victory against the Cary Grove Trojans by a score of 27-6. This was their first round playoff win and improves their overall record to 6-2.

The won moved them to the semi-final bracket in the Tri-counties football league which also includes teams from Barrington, Grayslake, Lake Zurich, Wauconda, and Libertyville.

Fullback, Brandon Ziemann was instrumental in the victory scoring three touchdowns, rushing for 171 yards, and throwing a 41-yard touchdown to Tim Lorenzini. Quarterback Sam Carden was 5-of-9 passing for 135 yards. The Vikings head coach is Fernando Lopez.

Lindenhurst Lightning posts two wins

Girls U-10

The last meeting was a scoreless tie so Lindenhurst was ready for a battle and it showed. Sophie Khawaja scored quick in the first half with a penalty kick into the corner of the goal. Minutes later Danielle Kirby brought up the ball from halfway line outrunning the defenders to score. Keeper Kia Miller kept them scoreless for the first half. The second half kept keeper Caitlin Duffy very busy but she stopped them all including a sure fire shot from Evanston that the referee was ready to call until she held the ball in front of the line. A corner kick from Khawaja to Jennifer Zak wrapped up the 3-0 victory.

The Lightning then downed Lake Forest, 4-1. The traffic was fierce in front of the Lake Forest goal where Danielle Kirby escaped to score the first goal. Minutes later the identical play had Kirby shooting her second. A pass from Michelle Geurtz to Emily Bulow resulted in the third for the first half. Keeper Kia Miller held Lake Forest to a single goal. The second half played very tough with Keepers Stephanie McGrain and Sophie Khawaja holding tight. A shot on goal to Khawaja and a quick "right in the numbers" kick that soared up to Kirby waiting at the halfway line amazed Lake Forest' defense when Kirby out ran them to score her hat trick of the game.

Lindenhurst Blaze U-10 boys earn their fifth tie

Record now stands at 3-3-5

The Lindenhurst Blaze U-10 boys' travel team is starting to feel like the Chicago Blackhawks lately as they tied two and lost one. The big difference was that the Blaze found a way to come back from a deficit rather than letting their opponents catch them. Their record now stands at 3-3-5 overall and 0-2-5 in their division.

Not much can be said about the Blaze's 8-2 loss to first place Glen Ellyn Lakers other than their two goals and a well-played second half. The Blaze fell behind early as they were down 6-1 at the half. The only highlight of the half was in the first quarter when Kyle Sytsma soared in the air and headed the ball through their goalie hands on a nice crossing pass from midfielder Ronnie Herout. The Blaze coaches at half-time then told their players to forget the first half and start over. The second half was close as the third quarter was scoreless and the Blaze scored first on a pass from Collin O'Malley to Kurt Houghton who broke away from the Laker's defense and scored in the left corner past the goalie's outstretched hands.

In the next game, the Blaze played the Orland Park Skywalkers whom the Blaze had lost to earlier this year by 1-0. This also was a tremendous defensive battle and the Blaze came away with a 1-1 tie. The Blaze scored first when Brian Hook took a short corner shot through the goalie's hands and Sytsma chipped it in for a 1-0 lead. However, the Orland Park team dominated the next two quarters and eventually tied the game. Only the play of goalie Matt Laine kept the Blaze in the game as he repeatedly kept the opposition from scoring. Late in the game, Brian Hook saved a sure goal from Orland by slide tackling the ball away from an open net. With just a few seconds left on the clock, the Blaze seemed they would pull one out on a breakaway by Kurt Houghton but time ran out as he made his way down field.

In the final game, the Blaze played the second place team of the Fox Valley Strikers. The Strikers immediately took a 2-0 lead in the first four minutes and the Blaze seemed to be in for a long day. However, a few changes were made in the lineup which made the difference the second quarter. Tommy Sewart went into goal and played an exceptional game, shutting out the opposition for the remainder of the game.

Midfielders Colin O'Malley and Kurt Houghton were moved to the forward position and forwards Connor O'Keefe and Kyle Sytsma went to midfield. This immediately paid dividends as the Blaze tied the game in the second quarter. The first goal was scored on a header from Sytsma to Houghton to O'Malley who put home the ball into the upper left corner. The second goal was from O'Malley to Houghton who got tripped by the opponent's goalie and the ball drifted to O'Keefe who slammed it home for the eventual tying goal. The defense was outstanding as defenders Matt Laine, Brian Hook and Andrew Stein kept the game scoreless the second half.

Congratulations abound at season-ending enduro

Congratulations are in order for a number of reasons.

First, congratulations to Bill Ring and wife Sherry of Antioch on the birth of a baby girl, Ash Marie, weighing in at 8 lbs., 3 1/2 oz. and 19 1/2 in. long last Friday morning, Oct. 22.

Bill was all smiles handing out cigars at the 1999 250 Midwest Enduro Stock Series season-ending event Sunday afternoon, Oct. 24 at Lake Geneva Raceway.

Second tip of the hat goes to 1999 Midwest Enduro Series Champion Tom Barnharst of Hales Corners, Wis. Barnharst clinched his 11th ever crown during the middle segment of a wild 100-car enduro event on the one-third mile asphalt Lake Geneva.

Third congratulations goes to

LET'S GO RACING . . .

Michael H. Babicz

Darryl Traber of Waterford, Wis. who scored the overall Goblin 250 victory.

An overall 'way to go' should be directed towards all of the competitors and officials who put on one of the truest and most exciting enduro events of the decade on the final one of the millennium.

The 250 laps were full of action with one car barrel rolling four times down the backstretch (driver was okay and returned to race more later). In addition, safety water barrels were knocked down on the front straight-away, creating an impromptu "barrel race" with a car sliding down the backstretch on the driver's side for several hundred feet before coming back down on all four wheels (driver made steering repairs and returned).

Throw in numerous spins, bumps, wall hits and even a bowling ball size rock being knocked on the track, and the unpredictability of enduro racing was, and is, alive and well, thank you.

The afternoon started with Brenda Weaver of Elgin driving her husband and a family friend's car to victory in the 15-lap, 27-car ladies powder puff race. Gina Fisher of Hawthorn Woods finished second, Jarlyn Newman of Geneva third, Jeni Prietzel of Hales Corners fourth, and Pam Morris of Naperville fifth.

Traber's overall and "A" class win was followed by Art Speciale of Elgin in second, Frank Calabrese of Black Creek third, Everett Dewitt of Milwaukee fourth, and Kenny Smart of Oconomowoc fifth.

Dale Willard of Lombard took the "B" class win while Zion's Mike Beigel was eighth and Gurnee's Jay LeBrun 10th.

Richard Paul Jr. of Janesville scored the "C" class victory. Bill Ring also placed in the money, earning a 10th place finish.

Over 70 cars were still running at the end.

A reminder of the 3rd Annual Spotlight on Racing coming up Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 6-7 at Fields Jeep Dealership in Northfield.

A great dinner, silent and live auction along with awards presentation and race car and memorabilia show is planned Nov. 6. The family day on Nov. 7 features entertainment by The Truth Warriors and the Dancing Hands Troupe of International Center on Deafness and the Arts. (ICODA).

Dinner tickets at $80 each with family day tickets at $10 for adults are available by contacting ICODA at 559-0110, ext. 271. Children ages 12-and-under are admitted to the family day free of charge.

See next week's column for more information on this great event.

It's twilight time at Thunderhawk. Sunset is a sure bet for visiting the Lake County Forest Preserves' new highly acclaimed Thunderhawk Golf Club, an 18-hole public championship course near Beach Park and Zion, designed by legendary golf course architect Robert Trent Jones Jr.

To celebrate a successful inaugural season and to introduce more area golfers to Thunderhawk, a sunset rate for public play after 5 p.m. is being offered on weekdays and weekends. The sunset rate is designed to encourage additional play after 5 p.m., a time when play is generally slower and daylight hours limit the ability to play a complete 18-hole round of golf.

On Mondays through Thursdays after 5 p.m. on weekends (Friday to Sunday) are $35 for Lake County residents and $55 for non-residents.

To take advantage of the sunset rates or for more information about Thunderhawk Golf Club, call 872-HAWK (4295).

And, organized bicycle rides are being offered. Come join fellow riders for a few hours of riding and learning. Mike Kerrigan of Mike's Bikes of Gurnee, and Pete Murphy, former managing editor of Bike Magazine, will host evening and weekend rides on local trails and sport parks.

Rides will be hosted in the evenings before sundown or daily on the weekends and will consist of light to moderate speeds and locations. Participants will have a chance to ask questions from the owners and operators of Mike's Bikes (Gurnee) and offer their own experiences to others.

Most rides will take place on county paths and trailways. Complimentary post-ride liquids and foods will be provided, however, riders are encouraged to bring their own beverage for the duration of the ride.

These rides provide a great way to enjoy the fall season and get fit for the winter months coming. Riding along riverways and wooded trailways offers beautiful scenery while challenging your fitness level along with fellow cyclists.

Contact the staff at Mike's Bikes at 662-8482, visit the store located at 4641 Grand Ave. in Gurnee, or visit their website at www.mikes-bikesgurnee.com.

Antioch Viking, Lake Villa Timberwolves junior football reach 'truce'

By MICHAEL H. BABICZ
Community Editor

Two rival factions of youth football seem to have mended fences.

At least for the time being.

A meeting between representatives of the Antioch based Viking Football Association and the Lake Villa Township Youth Football (LV-TYF) Timberwolves board of directors ended with a positive temporary resolution.

The Vikings are being allowed to use the Lake Villa Township Park home field of the Timberwolves for its playoffs beginning Sunday, Oct. 31.

The initial meeting started off with Viking officials asking for use of the goal posts and field striping already on the township park field.

The reason for the Vikings needing a home is the re-conditioning of the Antioch Community High School (ACHS) athletic fields. This caused the Vikings to face the option of playing all playoff games on the road.

"There has been some friction between the two groups the last five years," admits Rick Johnson, Lake Villa president. "It's time to eliminate it."

Initial reaction was to remove the goal posts and the striping, according to Johnson.

Further discussion with Lake Villa coaches resulted in the Vikings being allowed use of the facility.

"The Antioch Vikings thank Lake Villa Township and the Timberwolves for use of their facilities in order for us to host our playoffs," said R.J. Howard of the Vikings.

"These are youth football programs," said Johnson. "The board and the coaches for the LV-TYF did not want to deny the children the opportunity to play locally."

"It's time that each program develop their own community program," Johnson stated. "The recruiting of other communities players be discontinued."

"This is youth football, not the pros," Johnson added.

"To address the concerns of player recruitment, we strictly adhere to our recruiting guidelines that are enforced by the Tri-County Youth Football League by-laws, of which we are a member," Howard responded to Johnson's comments. "We encourage Timberwolves to follow the guidelines put forth by the Junior Football League of Northern Illinois which they are a member."

Regarding the basis of the Lake Villa program, Johnson says, "We believe we have a quality program to offer the children of Lake Villa Township. We play a more local and competitive program with communities our size in the Junior Football League of Northern Illinois with other communities such as Fox Lake, McHenry Township, Mundelein, Round Lake, Warren and Waukegan."

"I hope the two programs can communicate better in the future," Johnson concluded.

"It is our belief that the families that participate in youth football in the area should be able to make a choice where their children play," Howard said. "For 30 years, the Vikings have existed in Antioch, Lake Villa and Lindenhurst. It is our intention to continue to provide the best youth football we can for these communities."

New Central Baptist CEO shares agency goals

By JULIANA WALSWORTH
Staff Reporter

Martin Sinnott joined Central Baptist Children's Home (CBCH) to fill the shoes of Donald Mertic, former CEO of 16 years.

Sinnott who was educated at the University of Chicago where he received a bachelor degree in Religion and Humanities, and a master degree in Social Science, has devoted the last twenty years of his life to child welfare.

Before Sinnott was recruited to CBCH, he served as executive director of Youth Campus, a nondenominational organization based in Park Ridge with programs stretching throughout the Chicago Metropolitan area.

Sinnott has taken on several responsibilities including making sure that the right people are hired, getting to know the staff in all of CBCH's facilities throughout Illinois and Missouri, raising money, and using his judgment and integrity to "set the tone" for how CBCH communicates with children.

"I love working with the board of directors, the staff and the volunteers. I feel that I am working on behalf of the other people who share our goals in respect for kids and families," said Sinnott. Sinnott has spent a lot of time recently traveling and talking to CBCH staff. Although Sinnott has been very familiar with CBCH he still has a lot to learn. "I need to understand what we're doing here to maintain a strategic plan," said Sinnott.

Sinnott said that he's only doing a good job if he's helping the others at CBCH achieve their goals.

"I really enjoy my job and am honored to be entrusted by so many while having the opportunity to help kids and families," said Sinnott.

Sheriff's office takes steps to ensure safety on Halloween

With the approach of Halloween, Lake County Sheriff Gary Del Re announced that the Sheriff's Office Highway Patrol Division will be supplemented by members of the Sheriff's Office Criminal Investigations Division. Sheriff Del Re indicated that the additional deputies will be utilized in a variety of roles. These roles include providing a more rapid response to emergency and service calls. "Typically, the Sheriff's office experiences an increase in vandalism and suspicious persons calls during the Halloween weekend" said Sheriff Del Re.

This year, the greatest increase in these types of calls is anticipated to occur on Oct. 30, after sun-down. Accordingly, the additional deputies will be assigned to areas where the highest incidence of calls have occurred in the past. They will perform patrols of these specific areas plus random patrol activities from 6 p.m. on Oct. 30 to midnight on Oct. 31. "The increased police presence in potential high incident areas and subdivisions will hopefully act as a deterrent to those people entertaining thoughts of wrongdoing on a weekend which should be safe and fun for everyone" said Sheriff Del Re.

To help accomplish that goal, the Sheriff's office has provided parents and children with a few tips to help enhance safety during the popular trick or treat event. These tips include:

dren look both ways before crossing a street.

- Be cautious of strangers. Advise kids never to go inside a stranger's residence while trick-or-treating or at any time.

- Suggest that kids travel in groups and visit homes together. Adult supervision is highly recommended.

- Make certain your child knows his or her home telephone number and address.

- Put reflective tape on costumes for better night time visibility.

- Arrange a trick-or-treat route for your children and stick to it.

- Instruct children to remain in well-lit areas only.

- Buy or make flame resistant costumes.

- Make certain that costumes allow proper ventilation and do not obstruct your child's field of vision.

- In lieu of masks, use face paint.

- Provide your child with a flashlight to provide illumination when needed.

- Make certain your children understand that they should refrain from eating candy and other treats until a parent or other responsible adult can inspect it for signs of tampering.

In addition to the safety tips and stepped-up patrol operation, Sheriff Del Re is inviting parents to have Halloween candy collected by their children checked for safety before being consumed. This invitation has been extended to anyone who may have safety concerns about edible treats received by children while "trick-or-treating." "In the past" said Sheriff Del Re "the Sheriff's Office has received occasional reports of materials having been inserted or placed into candy or other items received by children as Halloween treats. To help allay these concerns and to reduce the risk of a child ingesting something potentially harmful, we have decided to give parents and guardians this opportunity."

This year, the Halloween weekend encompasses Oct. 30 and Oct. 31. The candy check will be offered on Sunday, from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and also during regular business hours on Nov. 1. This has been done to accommodate residents of towns that may be conducting trick-or-treat for children on Saturday or Sunday.

If you are interested in taking advantage of this free-of-charge service which the Sheriff is extending to all residents of Lake County, interested parties have been asked to go to the Babcox Justice Center located at 20 S. County St., Waukegan. The Sheriff said deputies would be on hand to screen candy and other treats via the Sheriff's office magnetometer at the entrance to that facility. Anyone having questions can contact the Sheriff's office at 360-6300 for more information.

*If you believe the supernatural

By ANGELA D. SYKORA
Staff Reporter

Before you go into a haunted house, if you believe in God, you say a prayer. When you leave, you say another prayer, and brush yourself off to make sure you didn't bring anything out with you."

Freelance writer and teacher Pat DiPrima recently captivated her audience at the Lake Villa Library—not with campfire stories of hook-handed maniacs, but with real accounts of supernatural phenomena throughout northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin.

DiPrima has researched and visited dozens of supposed haunted houses for her forthcoming non-fiction book.

Some are old and legendary; others resemble your next-door neighbor's house, only with a paranormal secret lurking behind the welcome mat.

Although she believes in the existence of other dimensions, DiPrima calls herself a "controller."

"I put up a shield. I don't walk into a house thinking I'm going to see something."

"Ordinarily, when I go to these homes, I near Highwood and Lake Forest.

"Fort Sheridan has a lot of history, and a lot of ghosts," said DiPrima, who worked at the facility from 1977 to 1993 as recreation center director and later management analyst for the army recruiting command.

With Peggy Flanigan, Fort Sheridan's newspaper editor, DiPrima visited and evaluated many sites at the base believed to be haunted.

"We did a lot of ghost hunting," she said.

Many people have reportedly seen lights moving up the Fort Sheridan water tower, said DiPrima.

"There was someone or something that haunted it."

At the officer's club, the "lady in red" was seen near a closet by the dining area. Witnesses said she resembled former First Lady Mamie Eisenhower.

Staunch military police reported seeing candles floating past the windows.

With their curiosity peaked, DiPrima and Flanigan spent a night in the officer's club. By 5 a.m., nothing out of the ordinary had happened.

They decided to take one last tour before calling it a night, and that is when something unexplained happened.

As she walked past the kitchen, out of the corner of her eye, DiPrima said she saw a shadow pass the kitchen door window, and Flanigan felt a sudden icy cold spot.

DiPrima explained this was not uncommon.

"When a ghost manifests itself, it gets cold because one dimension is coming upon another, like opening a door."

The library, which is connected to the old hospital, has had its share of strange occurrences.

Books have flown off the shelves. A woman wails. An angry old German or Polish repairman supposedly haunts the area, frustrated over problems with the pipes.

The old World War II barracks were taken over by a unit who used the building for additional office space.

Haunted houses

This turn-of-the-century Victorian home in Elfin is reputed to have been used by gangster Al Capone's cronies as a house of prostitution. The house is supposedly haunted by three ghosts—including that of a 9-year-old girl who died there. don't have any feeling one way or the other. I'm not prepared walking in to believe or disbelieve," she said.

As a journalist, it is her nature to question everything, but do not confuse her with a skeptic.

DiPrima is very open to the idea that the world we know, or think we know, is not all there is.

She decided to write a book about ghosts and hauntings after years of working at military base Fort Sheridan, on Lake Michigan

HAUNTED: Area buildings tell their own scary stories

Phantom footsteps, sudden gusts of wind blowing doors and objects and foul odors, were just a few of the peculiar happenings.

Soldiers claimed they heard the voice of an angry sergeant echoing through the barracks.

The well-known Stickney House at 1904 Cherry Valley Road in Woodstock, Ill., now serves as the Bull Valley Village Hall and Police Department.

Long ago, it was inhabited by the Stickney family. They had nine children; six never lived to adulthood.

Their mother, Sylvia Stickney, was a spiritualist who kept in touch with her beloved dead children through seances. Sometimes, the neighbors would participate.

The house was built in 1849 with all rounded corners. DiPrima said the belief was, if you had corners, the spirits would get stuck in the house, and float about freely.

In the 1950s, a realtor took a photograph of the house. When it was developed, the apparitions of a bride and groom appeared in the first-floor windows.

A satanic cult moved into the home in the 1960s. By then, the house was seedy-looking and run down, said DiPrima.

The cult had ritualistic animal sacrifices in the house.

Neighbors reported seeing strange beasts roaming the area, including a dark canine with glowing eyes.

The landlord evicted the cult, but the house stayed uninhabited for years because of its reputation.

Eventually, the house became the Bull Valley Village Hall and Police Department.

Unexplained activity still goes on there.

DiPrima said the Stickney House is "riddled with both good and evil spirits" that work on two different levels and do not acknowledge the other's existence.

DiPrima calls a turn-of-the-century Victorian home in Elgin, "the most haunted of houses I've ever encountered."

It is reputed to have been used by gangster Al Capone's cronies and various political figures as a house of prostitution.

DiPrima said the house is haunted by three ghosts. One is a "vicious man" who ran the "entertainment." The second is a 9-year-old girl who died in the house of pneumonia. The third ghost is a prostitute.

"This is a very nasty house," said DiPrima.

Records of the home's owners from 1900 to 1930 are missing. The woman who later lived there finally moved out. She made the courts put it in their records that the house was haunted.

Two people involved in a seance at the house reported seeing the ghost of a little girl from the waist up floating toward them.

Paranormal psychologists from the University of Illinois who were studying the house recorded a faint voice on a tape recorder in a room no one was in at the time.

It is believed that someone was tortured in the basement, and another child was supposedly murdered in the house. The outline of hands have appeared on the wall.

DiPrima said insulation covering old pipes had rusty stains that appeared to be blood.

She also has a photograph of the front of the house that shows a ghostly figure in the upstairs window. The apparition was not seen until after the photo was developed.

Another house in Elgin is said to be haunted by a little boy. The owner's toddler-age son reported being visited by the boy, who apparently "saved" him from great injury after he had fallen down the stairs.

Under a grate in the floor, there is "an abyss," said DiPrima, who does not know where it leads or just how big it is.

"I wasn't about to find out either," she said.

In a house in McHenry along the Fox River, a woman reported the feeling of being "watched by something."

After many bizarre occurrences including being grabbed by unseen entities, an explanation of sorts was discovered.

The mattress of a bed that was in the house when the couple moved in, contained a large bloody stain. Supposedly, a woman had stabbed and killed her husband in that bed.

Other "haunted houses" DiPrima has visited include several in New Munster, Wis., Union, Ill. and Crystal Lake.

DiPrima is currently revising and adding to her book. She is looking for sincere people who have stories to tell about real houses and locations in northern Illinois or southern Wisconsin that she can visit for herself.

Pat DiPrima can be reached at her office at the College of Lake County at 543-2434.

Nightmares of an inadequate housekeeper

This is an updated version of a column that originally appeared here in October of 1995:

LIFE'S A BEAR

Donna Abear

As a procrastinator and a reject from the Martha Stewart College of Housecleaning and Party Planning, it was nearly midnight and I still wasn't finished getting ready for the party. Despite the blinding glow from my freshly scrubbed floor, I dozed off over a bucket of water and Mr. Clean. Just a few minutes of rest, I thought, before I fell asleep. Then I'll clean the refrigerator! Zzzzzzzzz...

I dreamed it was the next day, and all our party guests had arrived early. They walked in one by one, rubbing their white gloves over the stair railings and the tops of pictures. "No dust, here!" each one muttered. "Hard to believe. She must have hired a service."

One of the guests looked in shock at the cat, which sat motionless as everyone arrived, not tripping even one person. "This is amazing," she said. "No hairball stains. No litter box odor. How did you do it?"

"Piece of cake," I told her, hoping she wouldn't notice that cat was actually a toy. The real one was locked in the basement with his smelly litter box.

Another poor woman cried out in pain from the upstairs bathroom as she slipped right off the toilet and fell on the floor. "What did you do? WAX the seat?"

Just then, my mother-in-law, the undisputed "Queen of Clean," arrived in a cloud of Eau du Pledge. I watched her eyes as she scanned the room for stray pet hairs, cobwebs, or maybe the word "Mom" painted in Spaghettio sauce on the wall. Her face fell. Nothing. Not a thing. The sight of my house that clean practically rendered her speechless ("practically" is the key word here). "Am I in the right house?" she muttered.

YES! I had done it. For once, my house had passed inspection. Everything clean and shiny, no dust, no smashed Cheetos under the couch cushions, no underwear on the bedposts. Or so I thought, until I watched my mother-in-law's hand reach for the refrigerator door. "Let me just put this pasta salad inside to keep it cool."

I began to scream. "NO, PLEASE! NOT THE REFRIGERATOR!! I FORGOT TO CLEAN THE..." I found myself running to stop her, but I couldn't get any traction on that damn clean and shiny floor. It was too late!

She flung open the door and the refrigerator made a loud noise that sounded like a belch. My mother-in-law's hair turned white as she backed away slowly. She tripped over the cat, who had somehow escaped from the basement and followed her to the refrigerator. Apparently even the cat got more than he bargained for, stopping dead in his tracks when he looked inside, the fur on his spine standing straight up.

"Give me a break, you two!" I said. "It can't be THAT bad! I just cleaned it...well, let's see, was it June? No. Hmmm...Easter! That was it. No, turkey decorations are for Thanksgiving..."

Stepping over the cat and my mother-in-law, I peeked inside the refrigerator. Nearly gagging on the smell, I realized they were right. IT WAS that bad!

The shelves were covered with aluminum foil-covered plastic bowls, each one labeled with a gravestone. "R.I.P., Leftover spaghetti, 1992" or "Eat Me—I'm a Bowl of Chili, November '94."

If that wasn't scary enough, there on the top shelf stood a horrible creature! Its head was made of spoiled lettuce from three months ago, eyes of shriveled grapes from who knows when, arms of withered carrots, a body that looked like a petrified orange that was oozing some sort of strange slime, and legs made of shriveled celery stalks.

"Who...who...who are YOU?" I said, trembling.

"Ha, ha, ha!" it cackled. "I'm the Crisper Keeper!"

The creature removed one of its "eyes" and threw it at me. As I ducked, I must have hit my head on the bucket I was sleeping on, which woke me up from my nightmare. Relieved to find myself alone in the kitchen, I decided the dream probably had some deep, important meaning, like "Clean the refrigerator, you slob." So I grabbed the cleaning supplies and reached my hand out to open the refrigerator door, but as I did a shiver ran down my spine. Did I hear a cackle?

I went upstairs and shook my husband.

"Honey. Honey, wake up. I still have to clean the refrigerator. Would you mind making sure there's nothing alive in there?"

He opened one eye mid-snore and mumbled, "I don't remember our marriage vows saying 'Love, honor and look in the refrigerator in the middle of the night.' Because if they did, I might not have married you."

Lucky for me he never read the fine print.

SPECIAL EVENTS

The Nashville Bluegrass Band

Woodstock Opera House hosts The Nashville Bluegrass Band, Lynn Morris Band

Considered to be the premier vocal act in bluegrass music, The Nashville Bluegrass Band will make their sixth appearance at the Woodstock Opera House on Saturday, Oct. 30 at 7 p.m. The quintet comprised of Alan O'Bryant (banjo), Pat Enright (guitar), Roland White (mandolin), Stuart Duncan (fiddle), and Gene Libbea (bass) is the most awarded bluegrass band working today. They have been nominated five times for the Bluegrass Grammy by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, and have won the award for their two most current Sugar Hill Records releases. The International Bluegrass Music Assoc. has also generously rewarded the band. They have won the prestigious Entertainer of the Year award twice, and have won Vocal Group of the Year five straight times, more than any other band Stuart Duncan has won Fiddle Player of the year each year it has been awarded.

Also appearing on the program will be The Lynn Morris Band. Lynn Morris is one of only a handful of female band leaders in bluegrass music today. Since the group's beginning in 1988 Lynn and her husband, bassist Marshall Wilborn, have earned international acclaim for their straightforward, soulful singing and genuine warmth onstage. They are joined by Jesse Brock on mandolin and Ron Stewart on banjo and fiddle.

The bands overall approach sparkles with directness and simplicity, reflecting the unmistakable influence of bluegrass legends Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs, The Stanley Brothers, and West Virginia mountain singer-songwriter Hazel Dickens. Their sound remains completely original, and captures the drive, the true essence and passion of real country music.

Lynn Morris was awarded the 1998 Female Vocalist Award of the Year by the International Bluegrass Music Assoc. and is a past winner of the national Banjo Picking Championship competition, Winfield, Kansas.

The Woodstock Opera House is located at 121 Van Buren St., Woodstock. For more information please call 815-338-5300.

Chicago Film Festival awarded major grant

The Chicago International Film Festival has been awarded one of only four prestigious new grants given by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. The $50,000 grant comes from the newly established Film Festival Fund, established by AMPAS to support the important work of film festivals.

Festival founder and Artistic Director Michael Kutza noted that this grant would benefit not just the festival but also the larger community. "The grant allows us to expand our community outreach programs, a facet of our festival that has been growing in recent years. We feel that this is in the spirit of the grant, with its emphasis on making festivals more accessible to the community. The grant will also enable us to bring to Chicago even more noted directors from around the world to discuss their work with Chicago audiences," Kutza added. "These AMPAS grants are a major contribution to the financial and artistic well-being of the film community, and they will be important to festivals in years to come."

Also honored with $50,000 grants are the New York Film Festival and the Telluride Film Festival. The New York International Children's Film Festival received a $10,000 grant.

'Phantom' at the Marriott Theatre through January 16

Marriott Theatre of Lincolnshire is proud to present Kopit and Yeston's PHANTOM. Performances run through January 16.

Journey to the dark, dusty catacombs beneath the Paris Opera House with the Phantom. Feel his passion, his desire, his blinding obsession for the sweet soprano, Christine. From this dismal realm he weaves his devious web to ruin the evil diva, Carlotta, and make Christine the new queen of the opera. Based on Gaston Leroux's classic tale, this Maury Yeston/Arthur Kopit collaboration beautifully embellishes plot and character creating perhaps the most human incarnation of the Phantom, mysterious and terrifying yet tragically misunderstood.

Phantom stars the husband and wife team, Douglas and Ingrid Ladendorff, as the Phantom and Christine. It is directed by Dominic Missimi, orchestra conducted by Patti Garwood, with musical direction by Terry James. The sets are designed by Thomas M. Ryan; lighting by Diane Williams, costumes by Nancy Missimi and properties by Kathy Klaisner.

Northern Illinois University presents James Sewell Ballet

The James Sewell Ballet will be leaping and twirling its way into the Egyptian Theatre on Tuesday, Nov. 2 at 7:30 p.m. as part of NIU's Fine Art Series. Hosted by the Campus Activities Board's Fine Arts Committee, the Minneapolis-based contemporary ballet company has been called 'incomparable' by The Oxford Press.

Sewell, who is the founder, artistic director and dancer, began creating ballets in 1982. He has gone on to choreograph more than 40 ballets, which incorporate his philosophy of bringing things people understand in their life to ballet. Sewell says he is 'stretching the boundaries of dance' when he merges elements of vaudeville with the graceful aspects of dance. He also goes on to say that he wants people to understand that it's 'OK' to laugh at the ballet.

Tickets for this event are available at the Holmes Student Center's Sandburg Ticket Office. Prices are $5 for NIU students with a valid ID; $12 for NIU faculty/staff, under 18; and over 65; and $15 for the general public. Ticketing hours are 1:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m., weekdays. Charge tickets by phone at 815-753-3146 or call the Campus Activities Board at 815-753-1580 for more information. Tickets will also be available beginning at 6 p.m. on the evening of the performance at the Egyptian Theatre, 135 North Second Street, DeKalb.

'Bringing Out the Dead' resuscitates cinema

The movie opens with the walling of sirens. At the end of the siren symphony, we hear an ironic cymbal crash. We see a close-up of Nicholas Cage's eyes, then another shot of his entire face as the camera pans back.

The new Martin Scorsese film "Bringing Out the Dead" balances the emotional impact of tragedy with a healthy dose of ironic humor. It is a snapshot of one man's Christ-like struggle against the misery and death that surrounds him in his work as an Emergency Medical Technician (EMT).

Cage soulfully interprets the poetic script. Once again, he delivers an award-worthy performance.

Experimental cinematography, realistic acting, and interesting directing make this film an exceptional

work of modern cinema. The irony of that opening cymbal echoes throughout the film until the final resolution.

Following the cymbal, we hear the EMT explaining what his life is like. He was good at his job, got a high from saving people. Over the past year he had started losing control, though. He had lost his touch. Everyone was dying on him.

He needed "a few slow nights and a couple of days off." That's exactly what Cage's character doesn't get in this whirlwind film. We watch his frustration grow along with his work load. He sees many young adults die because of a fatal drug called "Red Death." We see him breaking down.

Immediately, a call comes in for a man in cardiac arrest. Cage and his partner, played by John Goodman, roar and sear to the scene. They end up saving the man's life.

In the process, Cage meets Mary (Patricia Arquette). The two tacitly unite and become symbols of the protagonist, which is the collective guilty conscience of all people. Cage witnesses sorrow and pain in a universal way, while Arquette experiences it first hand.

He has come to believe in spirits and starts to let the pain in. He can no longer suppress the rage and frustration that come from witnessing so many senseless deaths.

Especially painful for Cage is the constant vision of Rose, an asthmatic teen who he failed to save one night. Haunted by her apparition, he feels guilt, not only personally, but universally. It's as if he must mourn each victim's death for the rest of the world.

Like Jesus meeting Mary Magdeline, Cage sees Rose's ghostly image for the first time in the face of a hooker. Rose, played beautifully by an ethereal Cynthia Roman, epitomizes the tragedy of death.

Rose's appearance grows in scope and intensity as Cage descends into a cauldron of emotional turmoil. He thirsts for Rose's forgiveness. Finally, he receives a visit from Rose that sets him free.

The parting visual captures Cage and Arquette in a Madonna and Christ pose that overwhelms the camera with light. Scorsese obviously spent a great deal of time crafting the film for just the right shots, just the right moments.

At times the film becomes chaotic, mirroring the life of this EMT.

Nicholas Cage plays a burned-out EMT in "Bringing Out the Dead."

Then, sudden moments of contemplation come with a collapse into silence, a slowing of time.

We repeatedly hear Mick Jagger's voice wailing in the background, singing the working man's blues. In these quiet moments, magic gives birth.

Particularly amazing is the moment Cage and Arquette share while riding in the ambulance. Complete silence and Arquette's grin fill the screen with hope in that moment. And the movie as a whole leaves a residue of sorrow around the rim of a cup full of hope.

For use of humor, emotional impact, fine acting and directing, and intriguing cinematography, I give this movie four-and-a-third-fourths boxes of popcorn.

THEATRE REVIEW

'Visiting Mr. Green' an engaging comedy

"Visiting Mr. Green," a first play by Jeff Baron, features two disparate characters. Green, an irascible 86-year-old Jewish widower and Ross Gardiner, a 29-year-old rising Manhattan executive who is at odds with his parents because of his homosexuality.

As a community service penalty for driving too fast and almost running down Green, Ross has been ordered to visit Mr. Green once a week for six months. It's a prospect that, at least at the outset, neither relishes.

Their personalities, like an onion, get peeled back as each scene unfolds. Both are battling loneliness and isolation and are able to take comfort in one another. And Ross serves as a catalyst in reuniting Mr. Green with his estranged family.

"Visiting Mr. Green" gets off to a slow start, laying the groundwork. And despite the richly drawn characters, as Baron manipulates his audience's emotions he often lays it on too thick.

Still, Mike Nussbaum, a 25-year veteran with Northlight Theatre, gives an animated, unforgettable performance as the reclusive Mr. Green. Guy Adkins is equally strong as the young visitor.

This comedy, directed by B.J. Jones, will be presented through Nov. 7 at the North Shore Center for the Performing Arts, 9501 N. Skokie Blvd., Skokie. For ticket information: 673-6300. — By Tom Witom

Guy Adkins and Mike Nussbaum star in "Visiting Mr. Green" at the North Shore Center for the Performing Arts in Skokie until Nov. 7.

When the 129th Edition of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey® opens at Rosemont's Allstate Arena Nov. 3-16 and Chicago's United Center, Nov. 16-28, a new and beautiful voice—an operatic tenor—will carry through the buildings, mesmerizing children of all ages. Under the spotlights, in a red sparkling vest and black topcoat, will step 23-year-old, six-foot-three Johnathan Lee Iverson, only the 31st person in history to hold the unique and prestigious position of Ringmaster®. Iverson also steps into the history books as the show's youngest Ringmaster, hired when he was 22-years-old, and the first African-American in Ringling Bros. history to command The Greatest Show On Earth.

The son of postal worker and a firefighter, Iverson was born and raised in Manhattan and began performing at age 11 with the world-famous and prestigious Boys Choir of Harlem. It was with The Boys Choir that he received his formal and intense voice training and where he was groomed to use the skills of charm and self-expression through the art of music. He traveled around the world with the choir and experienced what few children are privy to, for example, seeing Placido Domingo perform in Japan and singing at the intermission for Luciano Pavarotti's Concert in Central Park.

But Iverson is quite modest about being the center of attention. 'I feel like I have the easy job—I get to present all of these amazing acts,' he comments. 'But I'm not the guy standing on the highwire or riding in the Globe of Death.' His mother is even more pleased, especially when she was assured that he would not be standing in the tiger cage. Tickets for The Greatest Show On Earth are available at the Allstate Arena Box Office (formerly Rosemont Horizon), 6920 N. Mannheim Rd., the United Center Box Office, 1901 W. Madison St., all Ticketmaster locations, and online at www.ticketmaster.com. To order tickets by phone, call (312) 559-1212. Ticket prices are $5, $10, $20, $25, with a limited number of $50 VIP ringside seats available. Children younger than 12 can save up to half off on tickets for selected performances. Groups, call 671-9800 for Allstate Arena tickets or (312) 455-7469 for United Center Tickets. For general show information, call the Allstate Arena at 635-6601 or the United Center at (312) 455-4500.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

The Power of the Positive - The little difference

There is a little difference in people...the little difference is attitude. The big difference is whether it is positive or negative. - W. Clement Stone

During the Great Depression the president of The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce was quizzed about the effects of the depression on his city. He is said to have replied, "Depression? We have no depression in Los Angeles, but I will admit that we are having the worst boom in many, many years."

I love positive attitudes. I like to be around people with positive attitudes. They lift me up, inspire me and cause me to reach just a little higher.

A few weeks ago, Joe Nisbett, an old friend, came to visit me. We discussed a little business and then just spent some time catching up. Joe told me he had a goal to climb to the top of the highest points in the contiguous 48 states.

He went on to say that he was making some progress toward that goal including Colorado's Mount Elbert at 14,433 feet which he scaled in July of this year. Not too bad for a young man of 81. But, I've never seen Joe without his positive, can-do attitude.

Joe doesn't know it but he inspired me to reach a little higher that day. He shamed me a little, and made me want to move my personal performance up a notch.

The Power of the Positive

Having a positive attitude helps us look at potentially negative situations and still seek the best possible outcome. A good attitude is a motivator.

If you believe something good is going to happen to you, it probably will. If it doesn't, having a positive attitude will carry you through the tough times. Positive folks keep going forward because they believe that success is just ahead.

A good attitude is a career accelerator. If you study folks who excel at their work, you'll always find a positive attitude present. I've never seen a successful business owner who had a negative attitude.

An Attitude Adjustment

How do you change your attitude if it isn't always positive? You have to change your focus. Here are some tips that may help.

- Give your brain a new command. We become what we think about. Force yourself to dwell on the positive. Philipians 4:8 tells us to think on things that are true, honest, just, pure, lovely and of good report. Don't expect to get a positive attitude from watching "Oprah," "Jerry Springer" or the "Young and the Restless."

- Actions overcome fear. Thinking negative thoughts will not help you overcome fear. Action can. When you act, you move toward achievement. When you achieve, you gain confidence. Then you know you can, and your actions will reinforce your attitude.

- Attitude is a habit. Developing a positive attitude is not just a one-time enlightenment. Your attitude is a habit of thought. Habits take time to develop. Developing good habits takes longer than developing bad ones. Stay with it, because the reward is great.

CDW to expand in Chicago

Company seeks to tap city's workforce with transportation infrastructure

CDW computer Centers Inc., one of the country's leading direct sellers of brand-name computer products, announced it has signed a 10-year lease for the eighth and ninth floors of 120 S. Riverside Plaza in downtown Chicago to accommodate the rapid growth of its sales force.

The lease also provides for certain expansion and renewal options.

The company is seeking to tap the larger pool of workers in the city and offer a workplace option for potential employees who want to work in the city.

CDW is among the first adopters of the Internet, launching its site, www.cdw.com, in 1995. CDW has integrated e-commerce into its direct model, while also expanding and developing its sales force. This has created a need for greater space in which employees can work.

The 72,000-square-foot office space will be designed as a sales office for a portion of the company's growing base of sales account managers. According to the company, its sales force is recognized as the best in the computer and software industry.

CDW account managers are trained to offer personalized one-on-one relationships with customers, knowledgeable advice across technology products and integration of e-commerce in serving their customers.

The company's sales force is expected to increase to approximately 1,100 account managers by the end of 2000, an increase of more than 75 percent since the end of 1998.

"Adding an office downtown provides a new dimension for CDW as an employer, and will allow us to continue to meet our future work force and facility requirements," said Greg Zeman, CDW president.

"We will appeal to and be able to attract and retain those coworkers and future coworkers who have expressed the desire to work downtown or suburban locations and avail themselves of the transportation, living and other amenities inherent in the city of Chicago. As we have grown from a home-based business to a FORTUNE 1000 company, this step in our evolution represents our continued investment in our greatest asset—our coworkers," Zeman said.

Initial occupancy is expected in April 2000 and, at capacity, the office will accommodate more than 500 account managers. The new location builds on the success of CDW's Vernon Hills and Buffalo Grove sales offices that currently house more than 740 account managers.

As one of Chicagoland's largest and fastest-growing public companies, CDW's new sales office is being enthusiastically received by the downtown community.

"We are proud to play a part in CDW's future, as they expand in downtown Chicago," said Richard M. Daley, mayor of Chicago. "We work very hard to create not only a city that people want to live and work in, but one which supports technology today for Chicago's tomorrow. CDW's move downtown demonstrates that Chicago has the infrastructure revolution."

CDW offers computers, related products and advice for businesses and consumers nationwide. The company offers brand-name products and is celebrating its 15th anniversary. CDW today employs 1,800 and generated $2.3 billion in sales in the 12 months just ended.

Inflation to accelerate gradually, says Bank One economist

Inflation will remain more of a threat than a reality in the near term, and the Fed is unlikely to resume tightening until early 2000, said Diane C. Swonk, Bank One's chief economist.

"The good news is that the acceleration in inflation, rooted in tight labor markets and an unwinding of the Asian crisis, is expected to be gradual," Swonk said in the current edition of One View, the bank's monthly economic newsletter.

The Fed will be slightly less preemptive than in the past, ready to tighten at the first evidence of inflation, but not much before it, she said. "The Fed wants to be perceived as the enemy of inflation, not the enemy of growth."

The timing is tricky, Swonk explains, but the bet is that the Fed holds off for the balance of this year and resumes tightening in early 2000. By the end of next year, Fed fund rates are expected to rise 3/4 percent to 6 percent.

The outlook for Treasury bonds and equities will continue to reflect concerns over inflation and rising interest rates.

Renewed fears of inflation and unwinding of the flight to safety have already put upward pressure on bond yields, and additional Fed tightening would exacerbate those trends. Swonk predicts that we'll see the 30-year treasury bond yield rise to 7 percent by the end of next year, with risks it will drift even higher.

Equities will have limited upside next year, with only modest gains in values.

"Double-digit gains in equity values should be viewed with extreme caution over the next year," Swonk said. "Invest with caution."

Swonk also said real Gross Domestic Product (GDP) is forecast to rise 4.4 percent in the third quarter, more than double the pace of the second quarter. Prospects for the fourth quarter are even better, with the rebuilding of inventories expected to continue, while exports further accelerate. Real GDP is predicted to rise 4.6 percent in the fourth quarter.

Bank One's economic forecasting department also provides regional outlooks based on its proprietary series of indices measuring the total output of goods and services within states including the regions consisting of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin. Growth in the Great Lakes is expected to accelerate at year-end, with strong gains in light vehicle production adding to a burgeoning recovery in the steel and agricultural equipment sectors, Swonk predicted. Area United Auto Workers (UAW) received a $1,350 signing bonus upon agreement of recent contracts, which should provide an extra lift to holiday spending. The only drag on growth in the near-term is tight labor markets. "Unemployment has dipped so low in some parts of the region that employment growth has come to a standstill," Swonk noted.

Groundbreaking Ceremony for Hewitt Associates

McShane Corporation recently broke ground for the new 200,877 sq.-ft., build-to-suit professional services building for Hewitt Associates. The new facility is situated on a 12-acre site within Enterprise Point of Lincolnshire, a 21-acre business park located in Lincolnshire. Completion of the project is scheduled for May 2000. McShane Construction Corporation is the design/builder of the project and Archideas, Inc. is the project architect. Pictured at the ceremony (left to right) are: Kevin Owens, Hewitt Associates; Jim McShane, McShane Construction Corporation; Jay Wight, Hewitt Associates; Jim McGill, McShane Corporation; Mayor Barbara LaPiana, village of Lincolnshire; and Jack Rosenberg and Hank Mawicke, Colliers Bennett & Kahnweiler, Inc.

Northern Illinois Chapter of International Facility Management Association meeting

The monthly meeting of Northern Illinois Chapter of the International Facility Management Association (IFMA) will be held at 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday, November 2, at Allstate Insurance Company, located at 3100 Sanders Rd., Northbrook. The Allstate Corporation is the parent of Allstate Insurance Company, the nation's largest publicly held personal lines insurance company. Allstate insures one of every eight cars and homes in the U.S., and is also a major life insurer. The company services more than 14 million households through some 15,500 agents and 780 life specialists in the U.S. and Canada.

Allstate has been instrumental in the success of our organization by hosting monthly meetings as well as our Educational Seminars. Several Allstate members have served in leadership and support roles for our organization over the past twelve years.

The meeting will focus on how technology is reengineering facilities management processes. As the workload for Facility Managers increases, the need for utilizing technological tools in order to work smarter, not harder, is a reality. Facility Managers are in the best position to maintain the critical information required to make strategic space acquisitions and alteration decisions. These important decisions can have a major impact on an organization's profitability.

How do Facility Managers organize, make use of, and provide this information to the people who need it most? CAD systems and traditional Computer Aided Facility Management (CAFM) systems may not effectively communicate this information. A Visual Information System is one means of expanding on all good features of CAFM.

This presentation will focus on the difference between CAFM and a Visual Information System (VIS) and explain the components of a successfully implemented VIS. You will see how you can use your existing drawings and data to establish a VIS. Attendees will learn what to look for in a VIS and how to implement it. You will see how to get and manage the information needed to make better business decisions and have a positive impact on your organization's bottom line.

We are pleased to have Mr. Rob Trenck as this meeting's guest speaker. Mr. Trenck is the Director of Facilities Markets for Aperture Technologies, Inc. He is a member of IFMA and the Program Board for World Workplace. Rob has made a similar presentation to the IFMA-Los Angeles chapter and received excellent reviews. Baird & Warner August, annual sales new records

Baird & Warner, Chicago's oldest and largest independent real estate company, continued its record shattering 1999 performance by posting the best August sales production in the firm's long and illustrious history.

August records tumbled as the firm's 1,200-person sales force rang up 1,407 sales for a dollar volume of $318 million, surpassing year-ago results by 9 percent and 19 percent, respectively. Both tallies were the best-ever August for the firm.

As recently as June the Chicago area's leading independent brokerage had surpassed the $2 billion in annual sales for the first time only five-years ago—and took almost all year to do it back then - makes this achievement all the more meaningful. It is a real benchmark of our success," said Steven Baird, fifth-generation president of the 144-year-old company.

As a result of August's performance, cumulative sales for the year are easily maintaining their record pace. Unit volume jumped 23 percent, with a unit count of 12,224 eclipsing year-earlier tallies by 2,316. Dollar volume was up 29 percent, rising $624 million for the eight months to $2.8 billion.

"What is particularly notable is that we are posting records principally on effort and energy and not on price inflation. The average sales price for the first eight months of the year was $228,000, 4 percent higher than the $219,000 average for the year-earlier period," Baird said.

Baird attributes the company's stellar performance, despite gradually rising interest rates, which some analysts have said would negatively impact home sales, to several factors: a dominant position in the Chicagoland relocation service market, expansion of the company's network of Chicago-area sales offices, the incumbent growth of an experienced sales/service staff and a steadily growing tableau of client and consumer services.

Important IRS news for business people

The IRS Illinois District is piloting a small business/self employed taxpayer compliance project that will help taxpayers who are willing to come into compliance, but fail to do so out of fear of lack of understanding. The program combines mandatory taxpayer education along with possible penalty abatements, liberal installation agreements, and other assistance for first time newly delinquent businesses and self-employed taxpayers.

To qualify, the business must have started on or after Jan. 1, 1997, and the owners have never been assessed a prior employment tax penalty, and/or not owe liabilities from a prior business venture. If the business owner qualifies he/she will be required to attend a mandatory business tax workshop that will help them meet and understand their tax obligations.

TAYLOR: Positive attitude can make a big difference

• Forget the past, focus forward. You can't rewrite your history or change one past mistake. The only way you can profit from your mistakes is to focus on not repeating them. Look ahead and set goals for greater achievement.

• Quit complaining and criticizing. Don't focus on other's faults. You do not elevate your own status one bit by tearing others down. Devote your time to improving yourself, and you'll have no time to complain or criticize.

Shopping for windows? Here's what to look for and what to watch Windows play an integral role in home construction and remodeling projects. They can improve a home's energy efficiency, enhance a home's architectural design and provide essential daylighting.

Window-shopping, however, can be a trying time for some consumers, especially considering the maze of choices, widely varying price ranges and conflicting sales pitches. Experts at Andersen Windows Inc., America's leading brand of windows and patio doors, offer consumers these window-shopping tips to simplify the process:

- Work with trained window experts.

Trained window experts will help you understand a window's performance, answer questions about energy efficiency, and provide sound advice about remodeling projects.

- Choose high-quality windows with a reliable warranty.

What a customer sales representative promises and what a warranty's fine print promises may be two different things. Windows are only as good as the warranty that comes with them. Andersen Windows provides a 20-year warranty on glass and a 10-year warranty on parts that is non-prorated and fully transferable should you sell your home giving homeowners an additional bargaining tool.

- Buy only energy-efficient windows carrying the National Fenestration Rating Council (NFRC) label.

The NFRC label rates a window's energy performance and allows consumers to make apples-to-apples comparisons regarding U-Factor and Solar Heat Gain Coefficient (SHGC). The lower the U-Factor, the better the window prevents interior heat from escaping; the lower the SHGC, the better the window prevents unwanted solar heat from entering.

Many states are now requiring all window products to carry the NFRC label. Check your local building codes for proper compliance.

- Choose windows with low-emissivity (Low-E) glass for maximum energy efficiency. Low-E glass features transparent metallic coatings that significantly reduce heating and cooling costs year-round. Low-E glass is a standard component of most Andersen wood-clad products. In fact, Andersen High-Performance glass is, on average, 41 percent more energy efficient in summer and 35 percent more energy efficient in winter than standard dual-pane glass.

- Select energy-efficient windows that require minimal maintenance.

A clad wood window in either an aluminum or vinyl-coated exterior provides maximum energy efficiency, low maintenance and the beauty of a natural-wood interior finish, if desired. If homeowners prefer a painted interior, wood windows are easily painted to change the look of a home's interior.

- Maximize the light in your home with window combinations, skylights, high ceilings and light interiors.

Studies show that exposure to natural light has a positive effect on our emotional and physical health. But most people spend a majority of their time in artificially lit environments, receiving less than an hour of natural light a day. Not surprising, homeowners crave light-filled rooms, and adding windows is one of the most popular remodeling projects in the nation today.

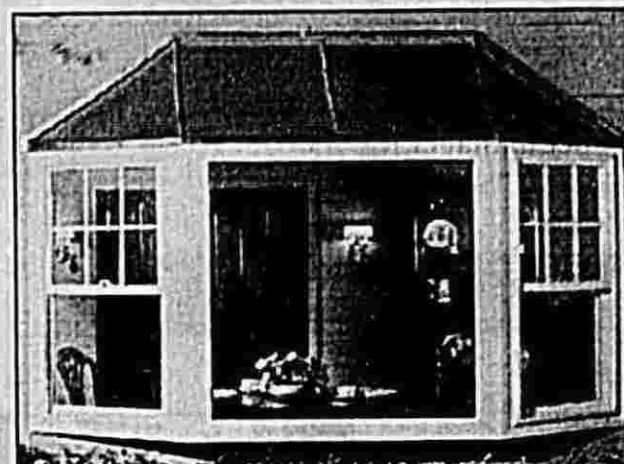

Windows and skylights brighten and enhance living spaces, especially in homes with high ceilings and light-colored interiors. Using windows in interesting shapes such as arches, triangles and ovals is popular, or you may opt for a dramatic combination of standard-sized windows to bring in light.

"It is cost effective to take several standard windows and design a creative combination," said Stacy Einck, manager of brand public relations at Andersen Windows. "Combining stock windows in this way creates a custom look but eliminates costly special orders."

- Increase your home's curb appeal by designing special window combinations. A cluster of windows not only floods a room with natural light, but adds a unique design element that can pay off should you decide to sell. Windows also have become critical design elements to beautify a home's living environment.

- Consider window accessories to improve a home's style.

One of the most popular window accessories is grilles or mullions that give the look of dividing the window into many separate panes. A number of styles and designs are available, including exterior, interior and grilles-between-the-glass where the accessory is actually between the panes of insulated glass. Andersen offers a unique option in the Andersen Art Glass Collection, which features 11 original stained glass designs. This option is popular because you can use a window as a decorating tool without covering the window or blocking natural light. Andersen Art Glass panels fit most new or existing Andersen windows.

Windows of unique shapes and designs can increase a home's energy efficiency as well as beautify.

For a copy of the Andersen 20/10 limited warranty and more information about Andersen products, contact your local Andersen dealer listed under "windows" in the Yellow Pages, or call 1-800-426-4261, ext. 1232, for the dealer near you.

Spring cleaning? Don't forget to clean your air

The seemingly ancient ritual of spring cleaning is alive and well according to a recent survey.

The survey, conducted for the makers of Space-Gard High Efficiency Air Cleaners, shows that most of us are taking the time to do a special house cleaning in the spring. Throwing away or donating items to charity tops the list of spring cleaning activities, while floor and window cleaning are close behind.

"When tackling that list of spring cleaning jobs, don't forget to clean the air in your home," said Sean McCarthy, product manager for Space-Gard.

"Because a high efficiency air cleaner reduces the amount of dust, pollen, mold spores and pet dander, attaching a media air cleaner to your home's heating or cooling system provides your family with clean air, in addition to keeping your house cleaner," McCarthy explains.

The survey shows approximately 75% of respondents do some type of spring cleaning. Ninety-two percent said they throw things away or donate items to charity. Nearly 90% said they clean floors, and 85% said they wash windows. Other popular activities include cleaning closets and cabinets, cleaning drapes and bedding, and cleaning the garage and basement.

Thirty-seven percent of respondents said they are cleaning less today than in the past. Most said they are too busy to clean the house but others admitted they are just too lazy.

"If you're feeling a little lazy or are busy with other things, cleaning the air in your home is one of the easiest things you can do to keep the house clean. Just remember to run your heating and cooling system unit's fan in order to circulate the dirty air through your high efficiency air cleaner," said McCarthy.

For more information about the benefits of a high efficiency air cleaner, visit Research Products Corporation on the Internet at www.Space-Gard.com, or call their Consumer Information Department at 800-545-2219 and ask for the free booklet Air Cleaning Facts. Durbin urges veterans to continue their fight

Vets 'deserve to be heard' about proposed cuts at North Chicago

By JOHN ROSZKOWSKI
Regional Editor

Before a packed auditorium at the VA Medical Center in North Chicago, U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin told veterans they need to continue to make their voices heard if they are to prevent the closure of the hospital.

"There are a lot of people in this room that have been fighting their whole lives," said Durbin, D-Ill., referring to the veterans who have fought in wars to protect their country. "We've got a fight on our hands right now."

Between 400 to 500 veterans, hospital staff and other interested parties attended Durbin's morning speech Oct. 18. Other dignitaries in attendance included State Sen. Terry Link, D-Vernon Hills, State Rep. Susan Garrett, D-Lake Forest, hospital administrator Al Pate, and Lake County Board members Judy Martini, R-Antioch, and Suzi Schmidt, R-Lake Villa.

Durbin urged all in the audience to continue their letter writing efforts to the Veterans Administration, as well as their congressman and senators. If enough momentum is built up, he said they may be able to stop proposed cuts in services at the VA facility.

A federal report calls for eliminating all inpatient services at the VA hospital and turning it into an outpatient clinic. Veterans would have to go to other facilities in downtown Chicago to get needed inpatient care.

Durbin said what happens in North Chicago may be "a test case" for the entire country. He said he's concerned about the consolidation of veterans health care services not only in North Chicago but across the country. And that's another reason standing up for the North Chicago VA is so important, he said.

"There are some 40 areas around the country that have more than one veterans (hospital) facility," said Durbin.

Durbin said the veterans of Lake County and the many dedicated employees who work at the North Chicago VA deserve to have a voice. He pledged to do what he could to help them.

"I think these people deserve to be heard. Don't you think they deserve to be heard?" Durbin said, bringing applause from the audience. Durbin said people from both

Nothing to be 'afraid' of

Superstitions of bats go back centuries, but humans have nothing to fear from bats, except in the movies

By JOHN ROSZKOWSKI
Regional Editor

Bats, those strange looking winged creatures of the night, have been known to strike fear in the hearts of humans. Images of bats turning into vampires, and sucking blood from unsuspecting victims, are as old as the ages.

Around Halloween time, the myths and superstitions surrounding bats become heightened—and those superstitions make great fodder for scary movies.

"I think animals that people have traditionally been fearful of throughout the ages are easy to sensationalize through scary movies," said Nan Buckardt, environmental education manager for the Lake

Bats: Hungry for bloodsuckers (mosquitoes), not blood

County Forest Preserves. "People have an innate uneasiness about creatures such as bats. It's just easy to build off that fear."

Most of the fears, however, are unfounded. Bats, in fact, are very useful creatures that serve a very important environmental purpose.

"Bats are actually very helpful to people," said Buckardt. "They do us a big favor by eating many insects. An adult female bat can literally eat thousands of mosquitoes a night."

The lore of bats as frightful creatures goes back centuries. It has been perpetuated by movies such as "Dracula," and more recently films like "Bats".

Residents will have a voice on proposed zoning changes

Meetings planned throughout November

By JOHN ROSZKOWSKI
Regional Editor

Lake County residents will have the opportunity to express their views on the proposed district residential zoning maps being considered for the county's new unified development ordinance.

The Lake County Zoning Board of Appeals will host a series of five informational meetings throughout the month of November. The purpose of the meetings is to give residents an opportunity to view the proposed zoning maps and offer input before changes are adopted.

"We want everybody and anybody from every walk of life to come out and see what we're doing. It's really interesting," said Leafblad.

The first meeting will be held Nov. 8 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the College of Lake County auditorium in Grayslake.

Leafblad said all of the proposed zoning maps will be on display at that meeting. In some cases, zoning classifications have been changed or renamed.

"We're going to have all the maps by township (available for public viewing). There's going to be 16 zoning maps so people can look at the

Moore 'strongly considering' bid for Porter's seat

Wood opts out of race

By JOHN ROSZKOWSKI
Regional Editor

State Rep. Andrea Moore said she would make a decision very soon as to whether she will be a candidate for U.S. Rep. John Porter's 10th Congressional seat in the 2000 elections.

Moore told her legislative breakfast club at Condell Medical Center that she was "seriously considering" a bid for the congressional seat. She said she had formed an exploratory committee and would likely be making an announcement about her intentions this week.

"I've been extremely heartened by the wonderful response I've had from political leaders, and most importantly, from friends and people who have supported me for a long time," said Moore.

Moore's speech came only a day after Lt. Gov. Corinne Wood announced she would not seek Porter's seat.

Wood said in a prepared statement that "there is just too much to be done in Illinois" for her to run for Congress at this time.

"While the thought of serving in the U.S. Congress is tempting, my heart tells me not to abandon the work I have only just begun," said Wood at a news conference in Chicago.

"Serving as Governor Ryan's partner in government, and as Illinois' first female lieutenant governor is a great honor," Wood added. "It's a solemn commitment I made to the people of our state. And it's a commitment I intend to keep."

Moore admits she was surprised Wood decided not to run but believes the lieutenant governor made the right decision by following through with her work for the state.

"She (Wood) has really begun a lot of new initiatives in her office," said Moore. "I respect her decision to follow through with her commitment to the voters."

Moore said the decision to run for Congress is not one she personally takes likely, noting a candidate must raise a tremendous amount of funds to run for a congressional seat.

She added that she has also enjoyed very much serving as a state legislator for the last seven years.

However, she added: "This is an opportunity that rarely comes along so we are giving it careful consideration."

During the morning breakfast, Moore also discussed speculation surrounding some of the potential Democratic challenges. There have been rumors circulating about the possibility of a bid by Chris Kennedy of Kenilworth, a member of the Kennedy family and the individual who runs the Merchandise Mart.

Moore admits the Kennedy name and money would certainly make him "a very formidable candidate." However, she said if Kennedy did decide to run, he would likely face stiff competition in the primary from State Rep. Lauren Beth Gash (D-Deerfield), who is also considering a bid for the congressional seat.

"I think Lauren Beth Gash can beat him in the primary because she is a very credible candidate. She has experience and she knows how to campaign," said Moore.

Also running on the Democratic ticket is Chris Cohen of Glencoe, a real estate and tax attorney from downtown Chicago and a former Chicago alderman.

Moore will face competition in the Republican primary. State Rep. Elizabeth Coulson (R-Glenview) has expressed an interest in vying for Porter's seat.

DURBIN: Encourages vets to fight political parties have to put their differences aside to work toward a common goal: saving the North Chicago VA. "We are literally all in this together," he said.

After a brief speech, Durbin fielded questions from many of the veterans in the audience. Lines of veterans and some members of the hospital staff filled the aisles to ask Durbin questions or make comments.

One veteran said he thinks the Veterans Administration has already made up its mind to eliminate services at the hospital. "It's not your fault, senator, but I think it's a done deal," he said.

Durbin, however, disagreed. "I don't think this is a done deal."

Enrico "Harry" Fontana, a Korean War veteran from Mundelein, said the survival of the veterans hospital is "vital" to the veterans of Lake County.

Fontana said projections show the county's population is growing and many new veterans are moving into the area. Closing the hospital or reducing it to an outpatient facility would be "unconscionable," he said.

"This is just wrong. Somebody said it doesn't make any sense. It's nonsense," he said.

Neal Iovino, a veteran from Highland Park, said he was one of first Marines wounded while fighting in the Philippines during World War II.

He said he's outraged the politicians in Washington are now talking about eliminating services for veterans who risked their lives for their country.

"If it weren't for all the veterans, Congress would be taking orders from the Germans," he said.

Younger vets also spoke out against the cuts. Sergio Guaderrama, 33, of Lake Geneva, Wis., gets treatment monthly for a hyperthyroid condition he says was caused during his service in Operation Desert Storm.

"We need this hospital to stay open. We need this hospital to stay open for the older veterans, and the veterans who are very young like my age," said Guaderrama.

Some hospital staff also spoke out against the proposed cuts. Dr. John Xantopoulos, a physician at the North Chicago VA, said the care many of the veterans receive at the hospital they would not get anywhere else.

"We have (doctors) here that are saving veterans lives everyday, and they want to throw them out on the streets. Where are these people going to go? Where?"

ZONING: Five informational meetings scheduled maps and their zoning classifications."

Other informational meetings will also be held throughout the county at the following locations:

• 7 to 9 p.m., Nov. 10, Grant Community High School lecture hall, 285 E. Grand Ave., Fox Lake.

• 7 to 9 p.m., Nov. 15, Lake Zurich High School auditorium, 300 Church St., Lake Zurich.

• 7 to 9 p.m., Nov. 17, Antioch Community High School cafeteria, 1133 Main St., Antioch.

• 7 to 9 p.m., Nov. 22, Mundelein High School auditorium, 1350 W. Hawley St., Mundelein.

Lake County Zoning Administrator Sheel Yajnik said while she wants people to be know about the zoning changes, she doesn't unnecessarily want to alarm anyone.

"Our calculations indicate that only one out of 10 property owners will be affected by the proposed new zoning districts," she said.

Public input from the zoning meetings will be brought back to the County Board's Planning and Development Committee, which will review any issues or concerns and make changes if necessary. The committee will then make its recommendations to the full County Board.

Leafblad said the purpose of the unified development ordinance is to have one comprehensive document which encompasses all zoning and development issues. He said the county's been working on the ordinance for almost four years. One of the major goals of the ordinance is to provide better protection of the county's environment and unique natural resources, including the rivers, wetlands, lakes and streams.

AT A GLANCE

A DIGEST OF STORIES MAKING HEADLINES THROUGHOUT OUR REGION

Power plant public meetings held

Libertyville—In a series of public hearings starting Nov. 3, the village board plan commission will hear Indeck Energy Services' request to build a peaker power plant in Libertyville.

The hearing will begin at 7 p.m. at the Marytown Retreat and Conference Center, 1600 W. Park Ave. Other meetings may be held at the same location Nov. 17, Dec. 1 and Dec. 15, if necessary.

The request to construct an electrical peaker power plant on 17 acres in northwest Libertyville was submitted to the village board in writing earlier this year. The plant, if approved, would be located between Route 137 and Harris Road.

Several community groups have openly opposed the project.

Pappas to run for county board

Fox Lake—For months, constituents asked Mayor James Pappas if he was interested in a Lake County Board race.

Until this week, the answer was no.

Pappas has had a change of heart and announced he is indeed interested in serving in the Lake County Board seat presently held by Bonnie Thomson Carter of Ingleside. The district covers large areas of Grant and Wauconda townships. Pappas will be running for the Republican nomination on the March ballot.

Pappas said Tuesday he plans to keep his Fox Lake office as well.

Man shot by drunken cousin

Round Lake Park—On Oct. 23 at 8:31 p.m., officers from the Round Lake Park-Hainesville Police Department were called to the scene of a shooting in the 200 block of Kenwood Drive in Round Lake Park.

Alfonso Cazares, 22, of Zion, was shot in the arm and leg with a small caliber handgun by his intoxicated cousin, 25-year-old Andres Gomez, who was showing off the gun when it discharged.

Cazares was transported to Condell Hospital in Libertyville where he was treated and released the next day.

Family hosts Scouts for Halloween

Wadsworth—Every October for the past 15 years, Lloyd and Joan Taylor have invited handicapped adult Scouts from Explorer Post 17 to their 45-acre farm in Wadsworth for a Halloween bash.

The Scouts reside at Waukegan's Ann Kiley Center, an assisted-living facility for the developmentally disabled.

It took about a day to transform the barn with decorations and lights for the party on Oct. 23.

During the annual event, guests enjoyed hayrides, great food, dancing and lots of Halloween candy.

The Newport Fire Department brought over their fire trucks and gave tours.

Millburn has ground-breaking news

Old Mill Creek—Teachers, students and community members gathered at the entrance of Millburn School on Oct. 26 to celebrate and recognize those who made the capability of school expansion possible. Selected students were required to wear hard hats, grab a shovel and perform mock ground breaking for the public.

A passed referendum for $10.5 million last April will be the means to fund the addition to the school's existing facilities. A state grant of approximately $4.42 million was also given to the district.

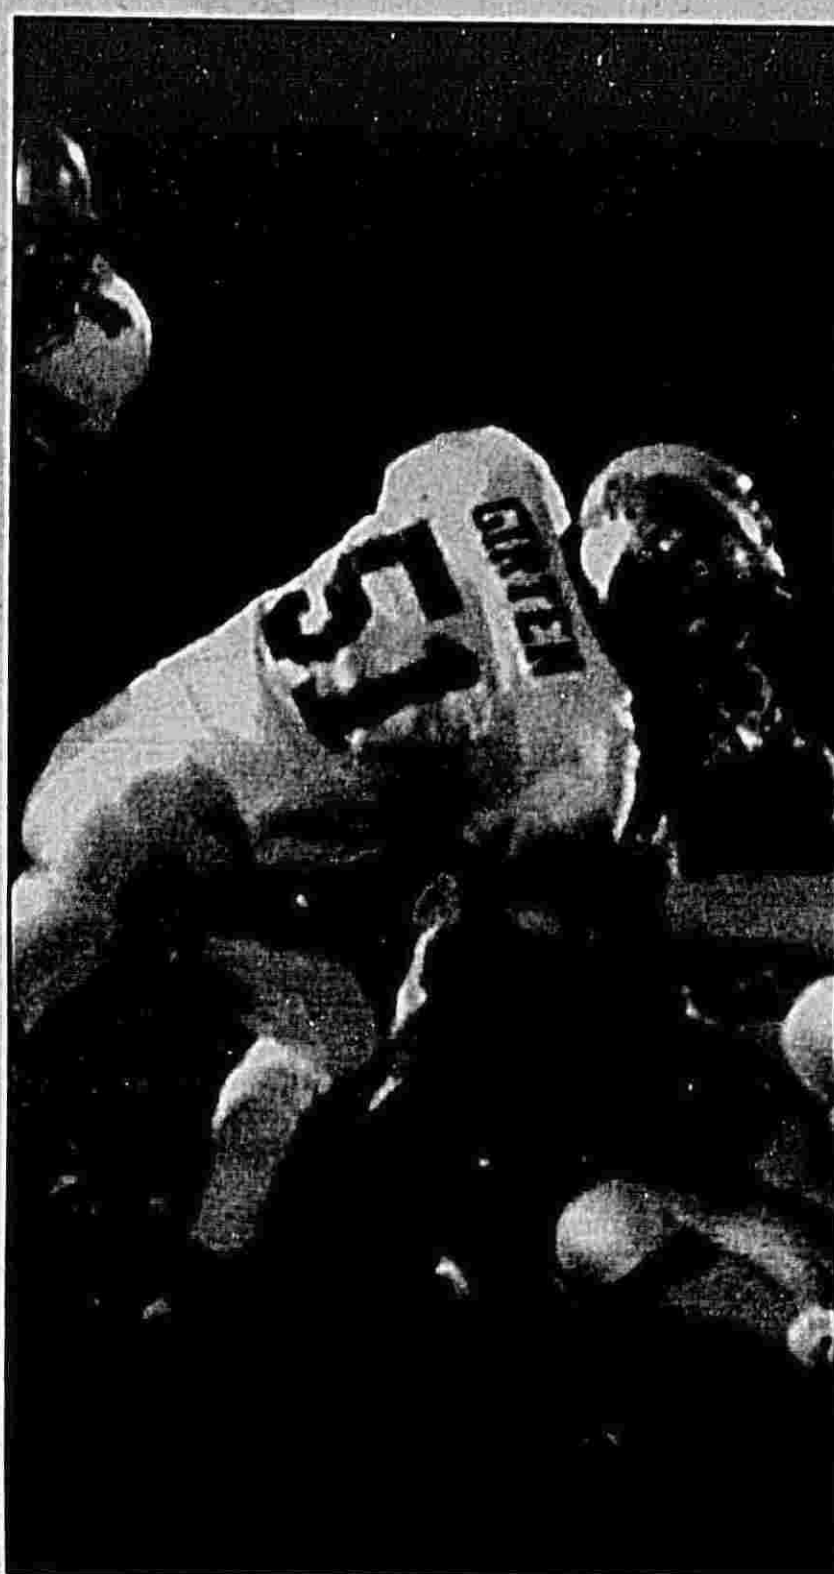

Jim Menzer, superintendent of Millburn School announced that the addition will include 37 new classrooms, a gymnasium, a library, science labs and what the students seemed to be the most excited about, a new cafeteria.

Student charged in bomb threat

Antioch—A desire to have "a three day weekend" prompted the bomb threat called into Antioch Community High School (ACHS) Oct. 22. The message left on the school's attendance answering machine prompted officials to cancel classes for over 2,100 students, faculty and staff.

ing to be at the Depke (Juvenile) Center on a hearing for another matter on Monday (Oct. 25), so he made the bomb threat call Friday (Oct. 22) to get out of school and have a three-day weekend."

The youth has been charged in a juvenile petition with a Class 4 Felony of knowingly phoning in a false bomb threat report to a school. Police officials declined to give the youth's age or year in school saying only he was a ACHS student and of minor juvenile age which is 16 or under.

Village unhappy with county

Lindenhurst—"Legal extortion." "Gestapo tactics." Strong words from Lindenhurst Village Trustee Pat Dunham came in reaction to the village being forced to sign an agreement Oct. 25 with the Lake County Building Department for continuation of inspection services within Lindenhurst.

"It's nothing but legal extortion on their part," strongly stated Dunham during discussion on the issue. "I don't like their Gestapo tactics." Attorney Paul Phillips spotted a provision in the agreement where the county absolves itself of any liability and places all of the legal liability on the community using the inspectors services.

Village completes 'forced' annexation

Lindenhurst—Welcome to Lindenhurst. That was the message Mayor Paul Baumunk gave to owners of seven parcels of property following the Oct. 25 village board annexation vote into the village. The parcels, totaling less than the 60 acres as required by law, are located along Grass Lake Road on the village's northwest section.

Part of the agreement accepted by the village following a public hearing Oct. 25 contains two special provisions. The first allows for the property to be rezoned from E-estate residential to S-suburban single family residential at the request of the owners. The second provides for the allowance of horses to be kept on the property for private use by the owners and family members.

Woodland may expand

Gurnee—In an effort to address continued district growth, the Woodland School District 50 Board of Education has developed a Strategic Planning Committee.

A 10-year growth report, compiled by professional demographer Dr. John Kasarda, shows a projected student population of 8,200 by school year 2008-009.

With the four existing schools practically bursting at the seams, the committee will be recommending the possible construction of another building on District 50 property located between Hunt Club and Cemetery Roads. Favorable opinions sway towards housing 4th and 5th graders at the new school.

Making a difference

Round Lake—Over 85 community volunteers gave the Magee Middle School cafeteria a grand makeover for national Make A Difference Day.

Every year, USA Weekend magazine partners with the Points of Light Foundation to encourage people to organize a service project that will benefit their community.

The cafeteria renovations were extensive. Volunteers cleaned and replaced old ceiling tiles, paneling, and molding, repaired cracks, and put in a large corkboard for announcements.

But it was the paint job that really made a difference. Volunteers transformed the drab yellow, gold and brown walls with vibrant blue and crisp white paint.

Bomb threat cancels classes

MUNDELEIN—School was dismissed as another bomb scare plagued a Lake County school.

Early in the school day at Mundelein High Oct. 27, a bomb threat phoned in to the school resulted in officials calling off class.

The call came early in the day, when students attended a "resource" period. School officials quickly decided to send students home.

Mundelein police and school officials are using all available means to apprehend the person who made the call. Kane County's K-9 unit, which is trained to search for such devices, was called in. No device was found. There were no injuries. No one has been arrested.

Woman steals prescriptions

Gurnee—A 39-year-old Vernon Hills woman was arrested by Gurnee police on Oct. 25 for illegal possession of prescription forms and attempted acquisition of a controlled substance.

Anne Marie Veselack of 1 E. Highway 45 was apprehended by Police Officer Steve Old at the Osco Drug store on Grand Ave. Veselack was allegedly attempting to pick up a Lortab prescription she had called into the pharmacy, using a Lake Villa resident's name. Lortab is a pain killer with an opiate derivative, which Veselack later admitted an addiction to.

Veselack apparently acquired the names randomly by going through the phone book, and by standing at pharmacy counters eavesdropping on customers. She would allegedly call various pharmacies to see if a random name was "still on account." Once she hit on a legitimate account, she would then fill the name in on the stolen forms, and call the prescription in.

Reports indicate that Veselack was using the Lake Villa victim's name as early as Sept. 25.

Veselack faces felony charges on the prescription forms possession.

She is being held on $100,000 bond and was scheduled to appear in court on Oct. 27.

Prankster drops a bombshell

School is supposed to be a safe place for learning. Ironically, while a Grandparents Day activity was going on less than a mile away at Antioch Lower Grade School, school officials were going through over 4,000 lockers at Antioch Community High School searching for possible explosive materials.

Hallways were empty at the high school.

At the grade school, the halls were buzzing with laughter and smiles of the young students and the young at heart.

Children and parents view school as a place which is safe.

A phoned-in false bomb threat to the high school disrupted the lives of over 2,100 students directly. Add to that their parents, teachers, staff, police and fire officials, plus family members, it disrupted over what could have been a most enjoyable day for all.

School administrators and police officials have vowed to prosecute the individual(s) to the fullest extent of the law.

This is a most serious offense. Police Chief Charlie Watkins points out it is a Class 4 Felony punishable by up to $10,000 in a fine and jail time in a state penal institution, not just the county jail.

With the threats at Grant High School in Fox Lake, Round Lake High School and previous ones at Antioch, questions begin running through the minds of all concerned.

When is it going to stop. School officials now need to be trained in explosive detection? Handling armed offenders?

All at a place which is supposed to be safe.

The long term effects of such activity is never really known. Talking with relatives of high school students, they have become concerned with the safety of the school.

The students showed their fear by 47 percent of them not showing up for class the day after the bomb threat last spring.

Hopefully, the love and happiness shared by the many grandparents coming to the grade school will some day be what is felt by the high school students when they walk through the doors.

For the Antioch community, and any community in Lake County, yes, it can happen here.

Representing the youth

Ms. Illinois 1999 Jade Smalls is an outstanding representative for the Land of Lincoln.

Making one of over 250 school stops throughout the state, Ms. Smalls came to Antioch to help open Red Ribbon Week activities at St. Peter's Catholic Grade School.

A simple but powerful message had students asking questions and thinking.

"The power of the tongue" was chosen for the theme of the 45-minute talk by the 21-year-old Northwestern University piano performance major.

What an individual says, either positive or negative, can have a long lasting effect on the person it is spoken to.

For Ms. Smalls, speaking before groups of young people means more to her than addressing the U.S. Congress in Washington, D.C., which she has done three times, or attending an international conference in Greece.

The focus of Ms. Smalls' talks generally centers on youth suicide prevention. A problem Ms. Smalls witnessed first hand in South Carolina while in high school, she is working to carry the message of awareness to students, teachers and parents anywhere she can.

Taking a year off her studies and delaying her graduation is something Ms. Smalls is happy to be able to do.

Having a purpose of her reign besides the traditional ribbon cutting grand openings and parades is keeping Ms. Smalls going on a hectic schedule which often finds her at two or three different schools during a day.

The goal for Ms. Smalls is not the crown of Ms. USA or some other monetary or physical reward.

Instead, it is the thought that if one child listens to her message and chooses life over suicide, her message will have been received and worthwhile.

Hopefully that one child has already been reached... and many more will be in the future by this classy young lady.

VIEWPOINT

Cal tour leaves visitor guessing

California digest:

Fertile Illinois flatlands looked unexpectedly comforting after a journey over, around and sometimes through the rugged coastal mountains of California.

For all the wonders of that far away region and an out-doorsy, free-wheeling life style that sets the pace for an entire nation, Californians work as hard as they play. We take for granted that land is an undiminishible resource, gobbling up tillable acres by the thousands for new development. Californians know better. Growing a crop in arid soil, developing a home site on a mountain side, carving a highway out of sheer rock are tasks totally foreign to a midwesterner.

Only a few days on the west coast is sufficient to drive home the point that the state that impacts our culture and style, grows much of the food we eat, drives wonderful technological changes and dictates our national politics, may be only a four-hour plane ride away, but for all practical purposes is a world apart.

California never ceases to amaze or disappoint. For memories, our trip was topped by the 7.1 "roller" Oct. 16 complete with a bouncing bed in a Palm Desert motel, swaying walls and rattling window blinds. Natives (the ones who don't pack up and leave) are nonchalant about earthquakes. They refer to them casually as either "rollers," no big deal, or "shakers," a nasty and destructive event.

Because of a visit with relatives, metro Los Angeles was unavoidable. Driving for a visitor there is like motoring into a blender. Everyone has heard about spaghetti interchanges and clogged freeways. What they may not be aware of is that L.A. has more highways than marker signs. Or so it seems. Visitors can be advised to deal with frayed nerves. I shouldn't have been surprised to see a young thing spinning along in an SUV at 65 mph while writing a letter on a steering wheel pad.

Lake Countians consider every extra minute spent on afternoon drive time as an invasion of privacy. The folks who invented gridlock and urban sprawl take their daily "imprisonment" in an auto in stride, continually moving farther out and creating cities like Antelope Valley 60-70 miles from work because homes there are more affordable. Home still is home, even if it takes an hour and a half to get there.

Californians ARE different. A matter of values. It's a do-your-thing, but don't bother me society. They think nothing of spending $50 million to refurbish the Hotel Del Coronado, a wooden link to the past or disposing of perfectly useable baseball parks in San Francisco and San Diego for closer-in, more cozy stadiums. Figure this out. The assessor of L.A. County ruled the other day that Dodger Stadium is worth $90 million, which is less than the team pays a starting pitcher. The 57th Pismo Beach Clam Fest went off in mid-October with imported clams buried by hand on the beach. The famed tasty muscles disappeared nearly 50 years ago. Monterey didn't close down Cannery Row when the sardines were fished out. Canning factories merely were replaced by souvenir shops. John Steinbeck must be turning in his grave.

Land of contrasts. Santa Barbara, a tony enclave away from the L.A. bustle and a sort of Lake Forest with palm trees, appeared to have more homeless people than Lower Wacker. Maybe they just happened to congregate on South Beach the day we passed through. All the cab drivers in San Francisco these days seem to hail from Russia or one of the former Soviet republics. The drivers may be struggling with English, but they know their way around the city. Our traveling group skipped Chinatown and the Italian eateries to enjoy a hearty meal and a big helping of fun at an Octoberfest night at Schroeder's, a food fixture in the financial district since the 1870's. That's where the chicken dance was introduced in the U.S.

The San Francisco dailies and TV covered the mass nuptials last week of 30 same sex couples like the midwest press reports traditional couples renewing their vows at a group church service. A news happening. This isn't Kansas, Toto.

The earthquake excepted, I had the eerie feeling leaving California of coming face-to-face with who we are in America and wondering what we might become.

With Porter's departure support turns to Gash

As a supporter of John Porter's, I was sorry to hear that he would be retiring, but delighted at the prospect that State Representative Lauren Beth Gash would consider running for his seat.

Lauren is a pro-choice, social moderate and fiscal conservative with a strong record as a grass-roots activist. Her community activism preceded her running for office and paved the way for Lauren to better understand the important issues that face residents of the area. Not only has she translated the insights and experiences gained from her community involvement to a legislative agenda that includes gun-control, education reform and other significant initiatives, but she has made constituent services a priority. Lauren's district office is known throughout the 60th district as one which is service-oriented and highly professional.

Lauren Beth Gash remains a community activist whose hands-on approach to government is outstanding. She would be a great asset to the 10th Congressional District and I hope you will join me in strongly encouraging her to run for this office.

More Gash support

State Representative Lauren Beth Gash's bi-partisan approach to politics, her reasoned, moderate views, and her success as a leader in the Illinois House of Representatives make her an obvious choice to succeed Congressman John Porter. I am writing to encourage Gash to run for the 10th Congressional District seat and to ask others to show their support for Gash, as well.

Gash has been a strong advocate on the issues that are priorities for 10th District residents, such as fiscal

PARTY LINES

He's no Bill Clinton

Grayslake Police Chief Larry Herzog reported to the Grayslake Chamber of Commerce recently on his first year as chief there. As he opened his remarks on the "state of the department," he said that people sometimes confuse him for President Bill Clinton because of his neatly quaffed but distinguished white hair.

"I assure you, I am no Bill Clinton, but I do see some lovely blue dresses out there," he said to loud laughter.

Herzog: Top cop for the one-liners.

Perry: Will he be appearing at Zanies soon?

Tonigan: Presided over a popular Senior Law Day.

den Plaza promotion.

Just two days prior to the village board meeting outlawing Rudolph and his pals, Billy Goat and his buddies were part of the Scarecrow Row Day at Linden Plaza.

Seems there is some select enforcement going on. Did anyone see any of the village officials patronizing this horrid breach of the written law?

Sometimes, one needs to look at the intent of the law, rather than the letter of it. Maybe it is time for Lindenhurst officials to do that.

It's an old joke, but . . .

While we're reporting about the honorable Chief, we can't let this one slip by: while closing his remarks to the Chamber, Herzog said that his department had some difficult challenges during his first year protecting and serving the village. The audience was silent while it listened to what it thought was the chief's confession.

"We had one case where a house full of antiques was burgled and we haven't been able to discover even one clue," Herzog said.

"The thieves were so thorough that they even stole the commode. We haven't been able to solve the case because . . . we have nothing to go on."

Big business

New business is still big news to people in such a rural setting as Lindenhurst. Seems there are rumors flying about a new tenant occupying the former Eagle building in Linden Plaza in the near future.

Although no confirmation would be given by members at the Lake Villa-Lindenhurst Chamber of Commerce meeting, word is it might be a bowling alley, golf store or Ace Hardware. An announcement is expected soon, within 30 days. Guess citizens will have to wait and see.

No escape

In all fairness, Tim Perry of State Bank of the Lakes spoke first, but with all the jokes going around, the chamber event sounded a bit like a roast. Perry was a bit contrite, though.

After pointing to a table at which sat Linda Wegge Slipke of ATC Wegge Ltd., an accounting and business consulting firm and Richard Gaddis, a funeral director at Strang Funeral home, Perry said, "I can't resist, but do you realize, we have death and taxes sitting together at one table?"

Are their reindeer daddy/mommy?

That is a question children of Lindenhurst officials may be asking this holiday season.

Since the village board is sticking to the letter of the law, no reindeer are being allowed within the village limits.

How is Santa supposed to get all of those presents to town?

What? There will be no Christmas in Lindenhurst?

The second part of the question is why the village looked the other way when a petting zoo was allowed to be part of a special Lin-

Seniors see courts

With the success of the first ever Senior Law Day last month, Chief Judge Henry Tonigan is considering making the visit an annual event. Two hundred seniors turned out, visiting the courts and attending a mock trial. Most popular attraction was the jail visit. Hands down.

Putting fires out

Fire/Rescue Chief Terry Masstrandrea was the spearhead behind arrangements for the recent third annual "Great bowls of fire" chili cook-off sponsored by the Lake Zurich Area Chamber of Commerce. Cooking teams from the fire department presented their favorite chili recipes. Taste testing was done at a station house.

THE PFARR CORNER

Our dear old dog is in heaven now

We have received three sympathy cards in the mail, one from a daughter and another from a friend.

Yes, we have lost a member of our family, our 11-year-old dog named Monday. I mentioned here three weeks ago that suddenly he lost his eyesight. It turned out the cause was cancer and despite our efforts to cure or curb it, Monday became immobile, unable to get up. We had him put to sleep before any noticeable suffering began.

The other sympathy card was from the doctors and staff at the Antioch Animal Hospital, who had cared for Monday since he was a puppy. It read:

"We know how much your pet meant to you and how sad you feel in your loss. In missing your special friend, find comfort in knowing you gave your pet a good home and a wonderful life."

What a nice touch.

Our house is quite empty without that constant, caring companion. A woman whose dog, Princess, died, told me: "When family members would be in different rooms, she would position herself in the hall so she could keep an eye on all of us."

A dog is said to be the only thing in the world that loves you more than he loves himself. Thus the saying, "All dogs go to heaven."

Janice especially misses Monday on the walks they took each morning to ease into the day.

Yes, Monday is an unusual name for a dog; I called him that almost facetiously because our first dog was Sunday, who had passed away at the age of 13. To borrow from Shakespeare, a dog by any other name couldn't have been more lovable.

Monday's age, 11, was equivalent to 60 years in humans. The smaller the dog the longer its life expectancy. Sixteen years for a dog would be like 80 for a human. Big dogs seldom live that long.

We got Monday in 1988 for $50 from a family trying to find good homes for a sizable litter. Anytime since then, had we been offered $1 million we couldn't and wouldn't have sold him.

After Sunday died and we began looking around for another dog (nothing fancy, just a nice little dog) I wrote a column titled, "Somebody's coming to chew our slippers."

That was an understatement. When Monday arrived he chewed up carpeting, a purse, two wallets, three credit cards, a picture frame, six drink coasters, a pair of tennis shoes, a pair of sandals, a Road Atlas and just about anything else we failed to put out of his reach.

He also spent his whole life adoring us and amusing us. He was a fantastic frisbee catcher, for example. (Where do dogs learn that?)

And whenever one of us came home, whether gone for 10 minutes or 10 hours, he went bonkers.

As television's Cokie Roberts wrote in a magazine article about her dog, Abner: "He'll sit at your feet for hours at a time. And when you come home at night there is that face in the window, silly and stupid and totally captivating."

Yes, there probably is another dog in our not-to-distant future, a Tuesday maybe.

Traffic reports needed systemwide

A recent news article on the lack of a traffic congestion monitoring system on Illinois tollways is yet another example of how the Toll Authority does not act in the public interest or in coordination with the Illinois Department of Transportation. Management practices like these are indicative of the need to support Governor Ryan's call to abolish the Toll Authority.

Accurate traffic reports allow motorists to make wise transportation choices daily. TV and radio traffic reports now begin at 5 a.m., a time that many people commute in order to avoid traffic. Real-time traffic flow data from state-maintained freeways is reported from a system of sensors that has been in place for many years. But if you are riding the Illinois tollway system, there is no indication of how many cars are stopped ahead. Illinois tollways do not have monitoring systems, leaving motorists with only half of the traffic picture. One would expect a greater level of service from an agency that collects $1 million in tolls daily.

Rumor has it that the Toll Authority has been reluctant to install traffic monitoring systems due to congestion caused by toll plazas. It is possible that the tollway could lose customers to other routes or to public transit if reports were bad? Or perhaps it is the Toll Authority's own fear of daily ridicule that has kept such reports from surfacing. It is clear, however, that providing motorists with real-time traffic reports of tollways is not a priority. And now that the Toll Authority has begun to de-prioritize ramp construction, like the one at Lake Cook Road, one can guess that a traffic monitoring system will remain unfunded.

Traffic reports are needed for both freeways and tollways, as the two invariably interact daily. As a result, the public loses the ability to make informed transportation choices. A lack of legislative oversight of the Toll Authority and uncoordinated efforts between IDOT and the Toll Authority does not serve the best interest of the tax-paying public. For these reasons I strongly support Governor Ryan's initiative to abolish it.

Jennifer Johnson
Lindenhurst

Know your tollway

Citizens responding to Governor Ryan's commitment to abolishing the tollway need to know that Illinois tax dollars, in addition to tolls, account for Tollway funding, particularly when it comes to planning and acquiring land for new tollroads.

The Illinois Department of Transportation (Illinois taxpayer funded) has spent over $20 million to plan the proposed Southern extension of I-355 and the northern extension of Route 53, which are both designated to be tollroads. Another $80 million was spent by IDOT to purchase land for these two proposed tollroads. Some of these dollars will not be reimbursed. Funding for IDOT often consists of a mixture of Illinois tax dollars and federal taxes received by the state for roads.

Don't be misled. The people who use tollways do pay for it—only twice—once at the gas pump and once at the tollbooth. The people who do not use the tollway are also paying for it. I support Governor Ryan's position on the tollway. It's about time someone proposed to end such a system.

A dead horse

The government is beating the wrong horse. Phillip Morris or State Farm did not do all those bad things. A few or maybe a lot of people at those companies are the guilty ones. They are the ones that should be punished. Instead the courts are punishing the little guy who has his retirement tied up in their stock. Generally the stockholders are the ones who suffer, not the company administration. They have their options, golden parachutes and legal protection to, in reality, commit murder and walk away with their pockets full.

Those of us who own the stock of these companies and had no say in the policies are the ones who will take it in the pocketbook. Nail the executives who are guilty. Take away their stock, options and all. Take away their retirement. Take away their condos in Florida or wherever and their freedom. If you don't they are just going to do it all over again somewhere else with someone else's money. Take their ill-gotten gains and put them where they can't do it again. Maybe, just maybe, some business leaders will realize that the ethical road is the one best traveled.

Flu vaccine urged before the season starts

It's nearly flu season again, but the good news is there is a way to reduce the chance of getting the fever, cough, sore throat, running nose, muscle aches and overall lousy feeling that comes with this virus.

"An annual flu vaccination will prevent illness or, at the least, lessen the severity of the illness," said Dr. John R. Lumpkin, state public health director. "This protection, while recommended for anyone who wants to avoid getting the flu, is especially important for the elderly and those with chronic diseases, who are at higher risk for medical complications."

There is no way to predict exactly when the 1999-2000 flu season will begin, but typically it runs from November until April, with peak activity most often between January and March. October is the optimal time to be vaccinated because it takes about two weeks for immunity to develop and provide protection. The vaccination, however, can be given at any time during the flu season.

The influenza vaccine does not always protect a person from getting the flu — it is 70 percent to 90 percent effective in preventing influenza among healthy adults — but usually the symptoms are milder in those who have been immunized.

Influenza, commonly called the flu, is caused by viruses that infect the respiratory tract. Typically, clinical features of flu infection include fever (usually 100 degrees to 103 degrees in adults and often even higher in children) and chills, and respiratory symptoms, such as cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, as well as headache, muscle aches and extreme fatigue.

The flu is spread easily from person to person, often when an infected person coughs or sneezes and the virus enters another person's body through the mucous membranes of the eyes, nose or mouth. Transmission can occur by breathing airborne droplets that carry the virus or by touching items recently contaminated by an infectious person (such as a doorknob).

After a person has been infected with the virus, symptoms usually appear within 2 to 4 days. The infection is considered contagious for another 3 to 4 days after symptoms appear.

Each year, an estimated 10 to 20 percent of the population contracts influenza.

For most, the flu lingers for a week or two and then they recover. For others, the flu can cause serious and potentially life-threatening medical complications, such as pneumonia.

Dr. Lumpkin said flu vaccinations are recommended for all persons, but the shots are particularly important for those 65 years of age and older and others at increased risk of influenza complications, including — residents of nursing homes and other long-term care facilities housing anyone of any age with chronic medical conditions; people with chronic disorders of the lungs or heart, such as asthma, emphysema, chronic bronchitis or cystic fibrosis; people less able to fight infections because of a disease with which they were born; infection with HIV (human immunodeficiency virus); treatment with drugs such as long-term steroids; or treatment for cancer with radiation therapy or drugs; people who require regular medical follow-up or who have been hospitalized during the preceding years because of chronic metabolic diseases (including diabetes mellitus), kidney diseases and blood cell diseases (for example, sickle cell anemia); children and teenagers 6 months to 18 years of age on long-term aspirin treatment who, if they catch influenza, could develop Reye's syndrome, which causes coma, liver damage and death; and women who will be 14 or more weeks pregnant during the influenza season.

Besides the flu shot, Dr. Lumpkin also suggested that the elderly receive a vaccination against pneumococcal pneumonia and others with chronic medical conditions should check with their physician about the vaccine. Unlike the flu shot, the pneumococcal vaccine is usually given only once for lifetime protection rather than yearly.

In addition, the following groups should be vaccinated against the flu because, while not at high risk themselves, they may spread it to persons who are at high risk: health care workers (doctors, nurses, hospital and medical staff, personnel of nursing homes or chronic care facilities, providers of home health care) who are in contact with people in high-risk groups; and household members, including children, who live with persons in high-risk groups for flu.

Dr. Lumpkin said the vaccine is safe, effective and made from killed influenza viruses, which cannot cause the flu. Less than one-third of those who receive the shot have some soreness at the vaccination site and about 5 percent to 10 percent experience mild side effects, such as headache or low-grade fever, for about a day after vaccination. People who are allergic to eggs should or who have a fever should check with their physician before receiving the vaccine.

Flu shots must be given annually, since scientists formulate a new vaccine each year from inactivated influenza viruses in circulation at that time. This year's flu shot protects against the flu viruses CDC expects will circulate in the United States this year: A Beijing, A Sydney and B Beijing. Strains of type A flu tend to affect more people because they change quickly and more often, so people are not able to develop immunity as well as they can to type B strains.

American Heart Association surpasses goal in first year

The American Heart Association, Midwest Affiliate, as reported by board chairman Frank Borovsky, raised $21.1 million for cardiovascular research and education during the 1998-99 fiscal year ending June 30, 1999, representing a 16 percent increase over last year's campaign total. Last year's results reflected the 1997-98 campaign totals of the four former American Heart Association affiliates — Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Chicago — that now comprise the Midwest Affiliate.

In July 1998, the American Heart Association's 50-plus state and metropolitan affiliates merged into 15 regional affiliates under a single national corporation. In addition to the former Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Chicago affiliates, the Midwest Affiliate also includes Henderson and Union counties in Kentucky. The mergers, which reduce administrative costs, enabled the association to reposition a significant number of staff for mission-related activities in local communities.

According to Borovsky, one of the most immediate and important benefits of the merger was seen in the growth of the affiliate's research program. Prior to the mergers in 1998, the four former affiliates allocated about $4 million for heart and stroke research in Illinois, Indiana and Michigan. In 1999, the Midwest Affiliate allocated nearly $5.5 million for research projects that will take place in fiscal year 1999-2000.

"These incredible results also provide fuel to achieve the American Heart Association's ambitious new strategic goal of reducing coronary heart disease, stroke and risk by 25 percent by the year 2008," said affiliate president David Cooke, M.D. "Thanks to our successful campaign, we will be able to fund the launch of our two community initiatives, Operation Heartbeat and Operation Stroke, throughout our affiliate."

Operation Heartbeat is a program designed to strengthen the "chain of survival" in local communities and improve survival rates for cardiac arrest victims. Through this initiative, which will be launched in 24 sites in the Midwest Affiliate in 1999-2000, the American Heart Association will work with local communities to identify and strengthen weak links in the chain of survival: early access (calling 911), early CPR, early defibrillation and early advanced care.

The goals of Operation Stroke are to improve access to emergency care for individuals who suffer a stroke and increase awareness of stroke symptoms among health professionals and the public.

The program will be implemented in 21 communities in the Midwest Affiliate this year in collaboration with local emergency medical systems, hospitals and community organizations.

"When we began the merger process two years ago, our goal was clear: to position our organization for success in fighting heart disease and stroke in the 21st century," said Borovsky. "Our financial performance this year is a direct result of steps we took to ensure a successful merger: the reorganization of staff functions, an emphasis on core fundraising activities, and the development of a unified board to implement our priority program initiatives, which will save countless lives and also improve the quality of the lives saved."

With more than 4 million volunteers, the American Heart Association is the largest voluntary health organization fighting heart disease and stroke, which annually kill more than 960,000 Americans. To get involved in local American Heart Association activities and for more information about the American Heart Association, call 1-800-AHA-USA1, or visit our Web site at www.americanheart.org.

Even mild disrespect can become behavior problem

Hi Dr. Singer,

My child is 8 and disrespectful. My wife thinks that it is a stage and will go away without intervention. I disagree. I believe that this disrespect has gotten worse over time and will continue to do so. I want to come see you about it. What do you think about disrespect from a child? Please be specific because I want to show my wife your column! D.F.

Dear D.F.,

You are completely on the right track! Bad behavior always has its roots in disrespect. This can start as young as 1-year-old! I am always amazed at how often I see parents allowing their children to be disrespectful to them. They do it because they feel that ignoring it is the best route. I disagree. Each time you allow your child to be disrespectful to you, your child becomes one step farther out of control. It starts early, from the beginning. If you allow your child to be disrespectful to you long enough, eventually, they lose all respect for you and become completely out of control.

PARENT'S PLACE

This is the rule of thumb to live by!

Many parents think that letting one or two things go by every so often or they "pick their battles," meaning that they only respond to some things and leave others alone. These are both danger and if you are a parent who does this, you need to change that behavior right now. You have to realize that you are the sole place that your child learns how to treat others. If you give in to disrespect, that child will believe that everyone will do the same thing. Thus, that child will continue to do worse and worse types of disrespectful behavior to more and more people as time goes on. If your child never learned to respect your rules and your limits, when anyone says, "No" to that child, he or she will give that person the same level of disrespect. Eventually, this can look like a child who is depressed or despondent, but is really a child who cannot get everyone to be manipulated as easily as Mom and Dad. You begin to see the danger in this.

I get to see this on a daily basis. When I work with parents, usually it is parents who have let the "little things" go for so long, that now, they have a hard time even living in the same house with their child. Even violent behavior starts this way. If a child learns that being disrespectful and blustery and scary, gets Mom and Dad to back down and give in, guess what Jr. will do next time he wants something? Those blustery, scary, behaviors become worse and larger as the child gets older. Unfortunately, many of the parents I work with are in my office long after this has been building up over the years and now, they have a completely out of control child who cannot be maintained by them. It's better to start early, when they are very small!

Emotionally, this is very hard on parents, but the financial end can be very tough as well. The institutional programs that I have seen many parents use for their out of control child are extremely expensive. Unfortunately, by the time parents are looking into these programs, it isn't a choice anymore, but a necessity! It's better to take things on early, when they are small and take them on intensely so that kids don't want to go there.

Never allow any disrespect. Always respond to any disrespect with some sort of appropriate punishment. Violent punishment is not necessary nor is it useful. There are many other choices when it comes to punishment. The key to this is to not be afraid to punish. You are doing your child a total disservice if you don't respond swiftly and intensely to any disrespect. This is where coming to see me might be a good idea. I teach parents how to know when to respond and how to respond so as to teach kids the right things. Do it now and you might enjoy your child forever. Wait until later and I can tell you that your enjoyment level will plummet. The parents who come in when their child is 17 look battle-weary, after fighting years and years of battles with their kids. These kinds of things can be taken care of within a few weeks if you do the right thing! Talk to your wife and take it on now for the sake of your child and your family! I'll look forward to hearing from you.

By the way...I do not believe in stages! Yes, kids pass through different types of behavior throughout childhood, but the important thing is to make sure the child learns a lesson from each stage. Do not just ignore behavior because you think it's a stage!

Is your cutting board a petri dish?

Do you know what you are putting into your mouth? Germs...two million of them if you don't clean your cutting board. That's how many times a food poisoning bacterium can multiply on a dirty cutting board in ideal conditions within seven hours. Everyone knows and has probably experienced the unpleasantness associated with food poisoning, but how many of us really take the simple, yet necessary precautions against it?

A report by the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign Cooperative Extension Service citing consumers' knowledge of food-borne illnesses, said the only 54% of consumers polled would wash a cutting board with soap and water after chopping fresh meat and before cutting fresh vegetables for a salad.

Simply enough, the best way to prevent most illnesses is to stop cross contamination. Scrub all utensils and cutting boards using dishwashing soap and hot water then sanitize with 1 tablespoon bleach to 1 gallon of water. The Food and Drug Administration further recommends the following to prevent food poisoning:

- Wash your hands and all food preparation surfaces and utensils with soap and warm water.
 - Thoroughly cook all meat, poultry and seafood.
 - Refrigerate all leftovers as soon as possible.
 - Store ready-to-eat food on the top shelves of the refrigerator and raw meat on the bottom shelf.
 - Reheat all leftovers until steaming hot.
 - Wash all raw fruit and vegetables in tap water.
 - Follow label instructions on products that must be refrigerated or that have a "use by" date.
- If you suspect food poisoning contact your physician.

LFH earns certification from the American Association of Cardiovascular and Pulmonary Rehabilitation

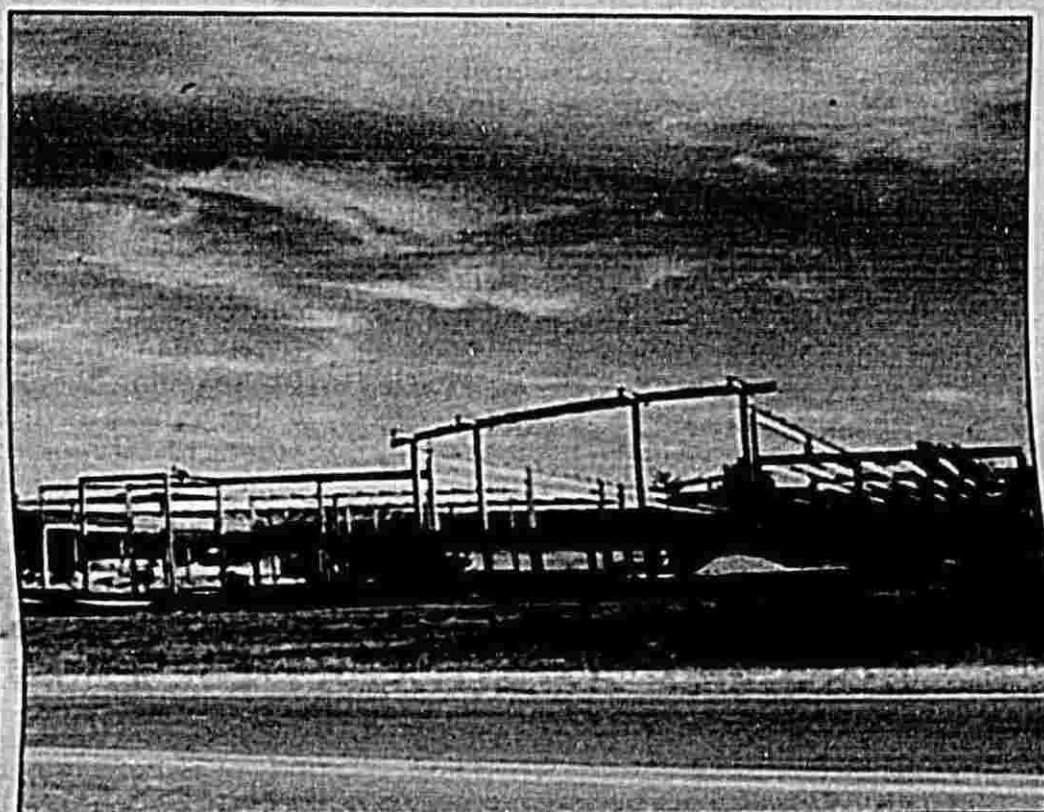

Lake Forest Hospital's department of Cardio-Pulmonary Rehabilitation was recently awarded program certification by the American Association of Cardiovascular and Pulmonary Rehabilitation. Certification recognizes those programs rigorously reviewed by a national board and found to meet the outlined essential requirements for standard care.

"As one of the first programs in the country, and the only program in Lake County, to have met the criteria for certification, we are proud to receive this impartial confirmation of the quality of our program," said Tricia Burleson, RN, Cardiopulmonary Rehabilitation coordinator. "We consider it evidence of our commitment to excellence and the standards of the American Association of Cardiovascular and Pulmonary Rehabilitation."

Cardiac rehabilitation programs are designed to limit the physiological and psychological effects of cardiac illness; reduce the risk for sudden death or relapse; control cardiac symptoms; stabilize and/or improve the patient's condition; and enhance the patient's quality of life.

For additional information on LFH's Cardio-pulmonary rehabilitation services, call 234-6183.

Good Shepherd Hospital is constructing a 68,000-square-foot health and fitness center in Barrington. Good weather has facilitated construction, and it is scheduled to open in summer 2000.

Stressed out? You might be grinding your teeth

About 95 percent of American adults grind their teeth at some point during their lives, but the majority go undiagnosed, says a pioneer in the field. The result is that many tolerate pain and dental problems that dentists can treat successfully.

Terry Tanaka, DDS, clinical professor at the University of Southern California School of Dentistry, says that in addition to causing chronic facial pain and muscle fatigue, bruxism, or teeth-grinding, can wear down tooth enamel and most dental restoration, and can even cause teeth to become loose. Most bruxing occurs at night while people are asleep.

"When people brux, they often wake up with some very sore and tired facial muscles," said Dr. Tanaka in an interview with Dentistry Today. "That is a very good clue to them that they brux and should have a dentist do a thorough examination to diagnose the cause of their pain."

Dr. Tanaka said that more research is needed to determine the exact mechanisms that cause bruxism and jaw clenching, but it is believed that emotional and physical factors are involved. Stress and sleep disorders also are believed to be contributors.

To relax clenching muscles, dentists recommend applying warm washcloths on the side of the face. To help relieve stress, they recommend advice such as cutting down on caffeine or getting exercise. Custom-fitted mouthguards made by dentists worn at night prevent grinding.

Dr. Tanaka said that one potential problem in the huge boom of esthetic dentistry is that many tooth-colored materials used for fillings cannot withstand the unremitting pressure that can occur when a patient bruxes through the night. "The esthetic materials used now are better than ever," he said, "but there needs to be consideration of bruxism and clenching in what materials dentists choose to use."

Dr. Tanaka advises patients who want esthetic restorations but who grind and clench their teeth to allow their dentists to determine the best material after a thorough consultation.

"In most cases," he said, "the severity of the bruxism problem will help determine the type of material that will provide the strongest and longest-lasting esthetic restoration."

Dr. Tanaka agreed that future generations of esthetic materials will withstand pressure from bruxism but that the issues underlying teeth grinding still need to be treated effectively for the overall health of the body.

BATS: Preying on mosquitoes, not humans

"A movie like this can really have a negative impact. Those myths can be heightened and it's harder to reach people through education," said Buckardt.

Some myths are based in reality. There are in fact vampire bats, although none of them live in this area. They are commonly found in central and south America.

Unlike the old legends, vampire bats do not sweep on their victims and suck their blood. Generally, Buckardt said, a vampire bat will attach itself to the surface of the skin of an animal which is sleeping, such as a cow. Using their fangs to make small incisions in the skin, they will then lick some of the animal's blood. The bats use the blood as a food source and generally the wounds do not harm the other animal.

In Lake County, the most common varieties of bats are the Little Brown Bat and Big Brown Bat. Even the larger Big Brown bats only grow to about six inches in length, and are generally skittish around humans.

"In flight, I have a hard time telling the difference between a Little Brown Bat and a Big Brown Bat. They're not very fierce," she said.

The Volo Bog State Natural Area in Ingleside is home to the largest known colony of Little Brown Bats in the state, according to Stacy Miller, a naturalist for the Volo Bog.

However, one is not likely to see any bats this time of year. By the end of October, pretty much all of the bats leave the area, and, well, no one is exactly sure where they go. Miller said they likely migrate to caves in southern Illinois or the northern peninsula of Michigan where the temperature is constantly cool so they can hibernate for the winter.

Miller said rarely are people as fearful of bats as they used to be. Oc-asionally, she said she will come across a child in one of the environmental education programs who thinks bats can turn into vampires but those superstitions are becoming more rare.

"The facts are often more interesting than the myths," said Miller. "More and more people are aware of the facts about bats and are less likely to believe the superstitions. Our education is paying off."

Buckardt said some people are actually repelled by bats, and she doesn't want to make light of anybody's fears. But, she pointed out that there are fewer people killed by rabid bats in the United States every year than are struck by lightning.

So if a flock of bloodthirsty giant bats are what you're after this Halloween, you'll have to go to the movies. They simply don't exist here.

"I want people to know there's no reason to fear the bats that are present in Lake County," said Buckardt.

VETERANS: Seek to keep pressure on Feds VA funding held a sign during U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin's speech stating "Lake County vets deserve Lake County Care."

Mazur, who has been active in the effort to stop the proposed cutbacks in VA services at North Chicago, said he was very pleased by the turnout for Durbin's speech. Between 400 to 500 people, mostly veterans, attended the event.

"Everything that we do is productive," said Mazur. "We just got to keep after them."

Mazur said the Lake County Board is planning a response to the VSN 12 report, which recommends transferring inpatient services at the North Chicago VA to other facilities in the Chicago area. He said the County Board resolution is expected to urge the VA not to eliminate medical services at North Chicago.

Now that Durbin has spoken, he believes vets groups should also invite U.S. Sen. Peter Fitzgerald, R-Ill., and U.S. Rep. Phil Crane, R-Palatine, to speak to veterans on the issue.

"We've got to get everybody here, Fitzgerald next. Tell him he has a special invitation to hear the concerns of the veterans," Mazur said.

Johnnie Allen, superintendent of the Veterans Assistance Commission of Lake County, urged veterans to continue their writing campaign urging the VA to reconsider the cuts.

"We should not stop the pressure," said Allen. "Even though there's an Oct. 31 deadline (to make comments to the Veterans Administration), we should continue to write."

Allen said events like Durbin's speech and an earlier rally outside of the North Chicago VA generated media attention for the veterans cause, but that "really was not the end." He urged vets to write not only to the VA, but also to their elected officials at the state and federal level to protest the cuts.

"I still suggest our efforts continue," said Allen. "The more letters of concern we present about the closing of North Chicago the better we'll be. This is not a passe thing, we're really concerned about it."

HOW TO PLAY

Select a winner from each of the week's games, listed below. Select in descending order of your CONFIDENCE in your choices. Win points at left for each correct selection toward possible total of 136 points. See complete rules below. You must be at least 8 (eight) years old to enter. To enter, clip along dotted line, then place game entry in POWER POINTS container at co-sponsor's retail outlet(s). Entrants must list name, address and phone number below.

LIMIT: You may enter only once weekly.

DEADLINE: NOON FRIDAY

TIEBREAKER 1 ☐ Total points scored (both teams) in BEARS game.
TIEBREAKER 2 ☐ Total offensive yards (both teams) in this game.

THIS WEEK'S GAMES

Arizona at NY Jets	Philadelphia at Carolina
Baltimore at Cleveland	Pittsburgh at San Francisco
Buffalo at Washington	St. Louis at Detroit
Chicago at Green Bay	Tampa Bay at New Orleans
Cincinnati at Seattle	Tennessee at Miami
Denver at San Diego	Illinois at Iowa
Jacksonville at Atlanta	Wisconsin at Purdue
Kansas City at Indianapolis	Northwestern at Michigan

POWER POINTS OFFICIAL RULES

- Object of the game is to amass as many of the 136 points as you can. Simply review the week's schedule of games, listed on entry form, and decide which game you are SUREST of picking a winner in. Write the name of your projected winner on the 16-point line. If that team wins its game that week, you win 16 points. Write the name of your second-surest winner on the 15-point line, and so on down to the 1-point line, which game you figure to be a toss-up. Next, fill in Tiebreaker 1, the total points scored by both teams in the week's designated game. If this step fails to produce a winner, the judges will apply Tiebreaker 2, total offensive yardage from scrimmage in this game. If a winner still doesn't emerge, a drawing will be held among those contestants still tied. Decisions of the judges are final. The weekly statewide winner of the contest will receive $1,000.
- Any entry form that does not contain a legible name, address, etc., will be disqualified.
- Entries that fail to forecast a winner from each and every game will be disqualified, as will entries that fail to distinguish between the Jets and Giants of New York and other similar teams.
- No points are awarded on the games or in case any game is not played for any reason during its scheduled week.
- Entering POWER POINTS constitutes permission by contestant for his or her name and photograph to be used for news and reasonable promotional purposes at no charge.
- Employees of this newspaper and their immediate families are ineligible to participate.
- Any inquiry about or protest of weekly results must be made by noon on the Friday following the announcement of winners.
- No purchase necessary. Facsimile game entry forms will be accepted. Enter contest by dropping entry form into POWER POINTS container at participating co-sponsors.
- Weekly deadline for entry will be noon. Fridays except when noted otherwise on weekly entry form.
- Neither this newspaper nor any co-sponsor will be responsible for illegible entry forms or those lost, stolen or damaged in any way.
- Limit one entry per person per week. Each entry must represent the original work of one entrant; "group" entries, "systems" or other attempts to enter multiple entries will be disqualified. Filling out extra forms and putting your friends' and relatives' names on them violates this rule. Any such entries are destroyed prior to grading.
- Contestants must have reached the age of eight (8) years by the Sunday of any week's play.

How To Survive The Job Search

By Nancy Sakol

Dear...Search,
I am employed as a Human Resource Manager for a large Lake County corporation. I have read your column for many years and enjoy reading the letters people send in stating problems they are faced with. Your answers hit home on many occasions, as some of the scenarios are all too familiar. Interviewing approximately 50 people per week, I sometimes find myself laughing out loud at your responses to some of the weekly questions, because I myself wish that half the time I had the legal freedom during the course of the interview to say what I really feel. Bravo to you! One topic that presented itself to me today was an applicant who was interviewing for a position as an Executive Administrative Assistant. The position was discussed during an initial telephone interviewing process in which the position was thoroughly gone over prior to the decision to bring the person in for the first formal interview. It was discussed that this person would be working in close proximity to other executives and included daily board meetings which could be lengthy. During the first 3 formal interviews, the candidate showed up wearing perfume or cologne that was grossly pungent. One would have thought the individual had bathed in the bottle. Needless to say, it was difficult for myself, as well as 2 executives to be able to tolerate the smell, so we all found ourselves trying to be candid enough so as not to have it noticed that we were trying to block out the smell from entering our noses and throats. One of the executives at one point actually stood up and asked if we could go to the cafeteria to sit down and have a cup of coffee while we continued. Needless to say, once we had beverages in our hand, we distanced ourselves as much as possible. The interview ended abruptly with one of the executives going into a coughing jag which resulted in what appeared to be an asthma attack. It is difficult to come up with the appropriate way to approach this type of situation without offending them. We loved her skills, but there is much apprehension by the people that she would be working directly for. They have left it up to me to either get the point across or move on to the next candidate. Please help with this one. I know you must deal with this from time to time. L.R. Lake Forest

A: I am laughing as I am reading your letter because, not only do I run in to this constantly, but I am always amazed that people are unable to smell the intense perfume or cologne on themselves. In this case, short of a brick wall falling on this person, I would have to believe that the message was driven home after the "coughing jag" and asthma attack. I would hope that the person realized the problem, but once they're in the middle of it, was in a dilemma herself, unable to find a way out. If the person is as qualified as you say, bring her back in for the next phase of the interview. When you contact her to set it up, explain on the telephone that you are sorry that the first interview was cut short but she (the candidate) was not aware that everyone in the company tries hard to be sensitive to the fact that not everyone in the company likes the smell of perfumes and colognes and that there are many people who are just allergic, such is what happened there. Inviting her back in for the next level of interviewing will also reinforce the fact that you will be choosing her for her skill level and not discounting her for a reason that could otherwise be misconstrued as discriminating. I have never told a person yet, who didn't take it as constructive criticism. Good luck.

Sasha Marie is a 2-year-old female Rotweiler, owned by Kim Roberts, sister to Louise. Sasha underwent knee surgery and is doing great. She's a great barn dog and loves horses. Sasha is definitely a mama's girl. She never leaves her side. She is extremely gentle & loves to play. If you point your finger at her and say "Bang" she'll fall to the floor and wait for you to say it's OK and then she'll get up. She has such beautiful puppy eyes, she'll melt your heart.
